Iowa Executive Acts to Settle Farm Situation

Gov. Turner Hopes Problem Will Be Solved in Few Days
WON'T CALL TROOPS
Believe Negotiations Will "Iron Out" Picketing Issue

Des Moines, Iowa.—(P)—Gov. Dan Turner today said that negotiations were under way by which he said he hopes the farmer's holiday situation near Sioux City will be settled in a few days.

The Iowa executive said nothing as to the nature of the negotiations, but was emphatic that they would not involve the calling out of Iowa National guard troops, as was requested by Sioux City officials.

"We have negotiations pending now and think it will 'iron out,' the governor said regarding the picketing of highways near Sioux City.

"It is a difficult situation but we have reason to believe it will be worked out in a few days."

The governor today tried to get in touch with Sheriff John A. Davenport of Woodbury county, but was unable to reach him by telephone. He did talk with County Attorney Ralph Pritchard but the nature of their conversation was not divulged.

Sheriff Davenport was asked by Sioux City business men last night to request national guard troops as it was considered the situation was out of control after a group of deputies had been ambushed by farm strikers.

Bricks and clubs flew through the air in the latest upsurge of farmers striking for higher produce prices when 500 farm pickets last night ambushed and routed a group of special deputies on a highway near Correctionville.

The ambushed officers answered a telephone call reputedly coming from truckers asking assistance in running the picket lines. Upon finding no trucks to escort they started to return to Sioux City when they were met by the pickets who threw rocks and clubs at four trucks in which they were riding.

Several officers received minor injuries but returned safely to the city where a force of 76 deputies was ordered to remain on duty to await developments. Sioux City police were also deputized for use in an emergency.

The ambushade was believed to have resulted from the arrest early Thursday night of 24 farmers arrested at their picket posts by 60 special deputies. They were later released on bonds pending hearings on unlawful assembly charges.

Calls For Troops

Immediately after the "battle" Sheriff John A. Davenport of Woodbury co. was asked by 300 citizens, including business men and chamber of commerce officials, to call upon Gov. Turner for aid from the national guard.

The Iowa farmers' efforts were echoed last night in a meeting of 1,600 farmers from 17 Nebraska counties who met at Fremont.

This group adopted a platform demanding:

"Cost of production for farm products plus an amount which will insure a decent standard of living."

"A moratorium on mortgages and interest, and

A national emergency farm relief conference at Washington when congress convenes Dec. 1.

The Nebraska farmers agreed to united action against farm evictions and voted "to do just as near right as we know how, but to go through."

Mine Pickets in Illinois are Sent Home by Officers

Three Wounded While Attempting to Halt Work at Shafts

Braidwood, Ill.—(P)—The invasion of pickets in northern Illinois fields became a rout today, after three had been wounded while trying to stop work at the mines under the new $5 wage scale.

Shortly after dawn Chief Walter L. Moody of the state police, confronted the encampment of striking pickets from the Peoria and Springfield districts and announced they were going home under escort.

A few minutes later the marchers, who had partly stopped the digging in Braidwood, Coal City and Wilmington strip mines yesterday, were homebound.

There were 78 cars in the parade, led by Chief Moody and with police cars sprinkled through the line and bringing up the rear. There was no resistance, and none of the pickets was armed.

Reinforced by 100 deputy sheriffs of Will and Grundy cos., the officers had determined to disperse the pickets and prevent a recurrence of the violence of yesterday when one worker, trying to reach the mine through a gauntlet of pickets, was cut when his windshield was smashed and two pickets were shot. Neither was seriously wounded.

Drop Liquor Case Against Candidate

Kewanee-co Man Declares Political Enemies Forced His Arrest

Green Bay.—(P)—Charges that Frank E. Prokash violated liquor laws were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner John F. Watermolen, and Prokash immediately charged that political enemies brought about his arrest. He is a candidate for sheriff of Kewanee-co.

He did not implicate prohibition agents, but said he believes persons opposed to his candidacy placed agents on his trail.

Prokash, Lawrence Yauger and Leopold Kohlbeck were charged with sale and possession of liquor at the Grove, roadhouse north of Kewanee. Prokash proved he had disposed of the place to Yauger last July.

Yauger and Kohlbeck waived examination and were held to the Milwaukee federal court.

Arkansas Negro Hanged After Attack on Guard

Crosett, Ark.—(P)—A Negro accused of stealing a $10 bill was taken from jail, lynched and his body left dangling from a pole in the business section here yesterday, a few minutes after he slashed the throat of a guard in an attempt to escape.

The Negro, Frank Tucker, 24, arrested on a charge of trying to steal from a bank teller's window, was under guard by Deputy Sheriff Henry Reed, 39, in the city jail awaiting hearing when he whipped out a razor and demanded the guard's gun.

Reed tried to draw his weapon but the Negro slashed at his throat, inflicting a long cut, and ran out of the building. He was captured by bystanders and placed in jail. Reed was taken to a hospital where only slight hope for his recovery was held.

An angry crowd quickly gathered about the jail, overpowered the keeper, took the keys from him and dragged Tucker from his cell.

The Negro was hanged directly in front of the jail.

Chicago Next Host City for War Veterans

West Virginia Lawyer Commander of National American Legion

ATTACK PROHIBITION
Also Ignore Hoover Statement and Vote for Cash Bonus Payment

Portland, Ore.—(P)—Immediate payment of the bonus and prohibition repeal were overwhelmingly demanded by the American legion in its 14th annual national convention.

The 1,200 delegates voted ten to one for full adjustment of the bonus, less than 24 hours after President Hoover had declared the two billion dollar bonus bill would jeopardize economic recovery. Prohibition repeal was asked by a similar vote.

Before adjournment yesterday, the convention elected Louis A. Johnson, Clarksburg, W. Va., attorney, to succeed Henry L. Stevens, Jr., of North Carolina, as national commander. Next year's convention will be in Chicago.

The war department was censured because envelopes franked by the department, containing statements printed on department stationery and written by Secretary Patrick J. Hurley on the bonus marchers, were placed on delegate's chairs.

Secretary Hurley, who was greeted on the opening day with mingled cheers and boos, from Huron, S. D., expressed surprise at the distribution. He had gone from Portland to Huron to fill a speaking engagement. He said he had not authorized use of the frank. The envelopes were not postmarked.

Representatives of the legionnaires showed their desire to vote on the bonus and prohibition, listening impatiently and frequently interrupting opponents of immediate bonus payment. The vote was 1,167 to 109.

Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, veteran administrator, had warned the convention at a previous session to "take into consideration the ability of the country to pay."

Vote on Repeal

When prohibition was reached repeal was asked 1,144 to 133.

The legion goes into next year pledged to support a larger army and navy, believing "America will never seek a war and a war will never seek a prepared America; vigorously" opposed to recognition of Soviet Russia; opposed to the Griffin bill which would permit the admission of aliens without taking an oath of willingness to bear arms in defense of the United States.

A resolution which the Pennsylvania delegation had hoped to present to the convention, calling for cessation of Hoover because troops were used in evicting the bonus marchers from Washington, D. C., was killed in committee the night before the convention closed, dying for want of a second. No attempt was made to have this question taken to the floor.

Robert Floyd of Nebraska, and Russell Meadows of Arizona, the Rev. Irving Wood of Pocatello, Ida., was chosen as national chaplain.

Since a majority of the executive committee of the legion was not present, appointment of the national officers, national treasurer, judge advocate and historian was postponed. The present officers will serve until November. James F. Barton, national adjutant for the past seven years, has resigned to become general manager of the American Legion Publishing company.

Five Farms Course, Baltimore Country Club.—(P)—Best of the first foreign threat since 1928, C. Ross Somerville, former Canadian champion, trounced Jesse Guilford of Boston, today 7 and 6 to reach the finals of the United States Amateur Golf championship.

Johnson, the new commander, will be assisted by vice commanders from the five districts—Charles A. Mills of Florida, John Maloney of Maine, W. H. Easterwood of Texas, Robert Floyd of Nebraska, and Russell Meadows of Arizona.

The 39 year old defending champion, Francis Ouimet of Boston, meanwhile was deadlocked in a spectacular duel with 22 year old Johnny Goodman of Omaha in a match to determine the other finalist. They finished the first 18 holes all square, each with five medal squares of 72, only two over par.

U. S. Imports, Exports Show Increase in Month

Washington.—(P)—An increase of $2,158,000 in the value of merchandise exported from the United States in August as compared with July, and an increase of $11,580,000 in imports was announced today by the commerce department. The month ended with a favorable trade balance of $18,738,000.

The merchandise exported during last month was valued at $109,000,000 as compared with $106,842,000 in July while the imports were valued at $91,000,000 as compared with $79,420,000 the previous month.

The increase in exports was due to the greater exports of cotton during August when the value of such shipments amounted to $18,119,800 as compared with $15,935,880 the previous month.

The department gave no reason for the increase in the imports but it was pointed out that increased activities in manufacturing probably caused an increase in imports of material.

Music Teacher Arrested After Youth Is Stabbed

Racine.—(P)—Robert Beauchamp, 18, was confined to a hospital here today with a knife wound in his side and Ben Pelgrin, a music teacher, was held by police, as the result of a street fight here last night. Authorities said the fight started when Beauchamp, standing on a corner with three companions, taunted Pelgrin as he walked past with two girls. The girls and Beauchamp's companions were released after questioning.

Eastman Funds to Be Used to Support 13-Month Calendar

Rochester, N. Y.—(P)—The interest of the late George Eastman in the movement to establish a 13-month calendar, which he financially assisted for eight years prior to his death, will be carried on with funds provided from his estate by the University of Rochester, chief beneficiary, in accordance with his wishes. This was learned today at the Rochester office of the International Fixed Calendar league, of which Mr. Eastman was president.

Plans which Mr. Eastman had outlined for the activities of the league in the United States and abroad are being followed under the direction of M. B. Gotsworth, whose headquarters are in London, with M. N. Stiles as American secretary at Rochester.

An international census by the league to date shows that in this country and Canada 302 large manufacturing, merchandising, chain stores, hotels, and publishing companies have gone on the 13 months basis, and that more are preparing to do so on Jan. 1, 1933.

Welfare Leaders Are Mapping Out Relief Campaign

National Organizations Prepare to Meet Needs of Relief

Washington.—(P)—Leaders in the country's welfare work returned homeward today, mobilized nationally for an autumn drive for funds to meet the winter's relief needs.

Twenty-nine social service organizations were in the mobilization directed by Newton D. Baker, former war secretary. Representatives of all in conference yesterday had received President Hoover's charge that "no man, woman or child shall go hungry or unsheltered" during the cold months.

Baker told the relief agencies, organized under the National Citizens' committee of the Welfare Relief Mobilization which he heads, that to public relief aids "must be added a devotion of every private resource."

Allen C. Somerene, chairman of the Reconstruction corporation which is handling a $300,000,000 federal relief fund, said "the ultimate responsibility for furnishing relief and work-relief to people in distress does, and should rest with the states, the political subdivisions of the states and the municipalities."

Nov. 23 for its campaign to raise relief funds. The national conference members will conduct an informative campaign to stimulate local communities in attacking their relief problems.

Can Europe Come Back?

The Post-Crescent has been successful in obtaining the rights to publish the latest series of articles by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted correspondent of the New York Evening Post. The stories, entitled "Can Europe Come Back", breathe a spirit of optimism that is unmistakable and indicate that this old world, which has been staggering from the blows of the worst depression in its history, is coming back stronger than ever.

Mr. Knickerbocker, whose comprehensive articles on Germany, which were published in the Post-Crescent last winter, won him wide recognition, has just completed a journey through eight of the leading countries of Europe. He went from the Danube to the Thames and talked with bankers in Switzerland and Belgium, in Italy and France, in Austria, Germany and England and his impressions will be printed daily in this newspaper beginning Saturday, Sept. 17.

He listened also to Italian workmen, British economists, Czechoslovakian intellectuals, American diplomats, Belgian waiters, Parisian chauffeurs, Milanese publishers; German communists and business men of every nation from these conversations is one of hope and courage. He found little pessimism, even in Austria, which has been the hardest hit. Instead virtually everyone he talked with was looking forward to a better era of understanding among the nations of the world and the early restoration of normal conditions.

Mr. Knickerbocker, better than any other man, is peculiarly fitted to write such a series of articles and the advance proofs indicate that he has accomplished a great job.

You cannot afford to miss them. Start them in Saturday's Post-Crescent. They will give you a clearer idea of what's what in this distressed world of ours and also give you a hint of what is to come.

Lincoln Ideals Needed Today, Hyde Declares

Secretary Assails Those Who Think "Government Owes Them Living"

STATUE IS DEDICATED
"Government of People" Made Catch-Word by Self-Seekers, Claim

Fort Wayne, Ind.—(P)—An appeal to the American people that they "turn back to the ideals of Abraham Lincoln" was delivered here today by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde.

Addressing an audience gathered here to dedicate a bronze statue of "Abraham Lincoln—the Hoosier Youth," Hyde rebuked those who "believe that somehow the government owes them a living."

"Few statements ever made by mortal man," he asserted, "have been more persistently misinterpreted than Lincoln's famous phrase at Gettysburg—'government of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

"That phrase has been bent from its true meaning to serve the advocate of pure democracy, the purpose of the demagogue, and of the radical. It is frequently the catchword of those who believe that somehow the government owes them a living without effort on their part. The phrase is often in the mouth of legislative blocs, which seek to emphasize a minority class interest at the expense of the common good."

"Abraham Lincoln was no visionary upon the rights of men, he loved America and the American constitution because they throw open the door of equal opportunity. But the individual, in Lincoln's philosophy, who was offered the opportunity was equally held to the duty of accepting it to the extent that his industry, his intelligence and his merits entitled him."

Result Of Labor

Hyde asserted Lincoln's philosophy made "properly the fruit of labor and a positive good to the world." Radicals, he said, can find small comfort from any honest interpretation of Lincoln's immortal words.

"To this nation today—emerging from the abyss of depression and distress into which war and its inevitable aftermath have irresistibly plunged it," he said, "the mere recital of some of Lincoln's immortal words should come as a rebaptism of hope and courage."

A message from President Hoover was read by Senator James E. Watson. The message said:

"I am deeply interested to learn of the unveiling and dedication of the Paul Manish statue of 'Abraham Lincoln—the Hoosier Youth'. Such a memorial of the great president is singularly appropriate in the state in which he spent so much of his boyhood, the state which contributed so greatly to develop his powers of mind and spirit at their most sensitive stage."

"And, as every fresh study of his life reveals new lessons of encouragement to a noble and fruitful use of every boy and girl's natural endowment of these powers, it is a true service to the nation to maintain institutions which, like the Lincoln Historical Research foundation, are dedicated to the continuous study of the great president's career."

"The ever-growing appreciation of Abraham Lincoln's character and of his immortal service, not only in preserving the Union, but in adding to its loftier ideals, is a wholesome sign of the fundamental soundness of the national character and of the people's steadfast devotion to the highest principles of life and government."

Missouri, Colorado And Kansas for Him, Roosevelt Claims

Cheyenne, Wyo.—(P)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pausing here for a two hour stop on his campaign trip to the Pacific coast, told a crowd that he had "assurances signed, sealed and delivered" in Missouri, Kansas and Colorado that those states would "do better than Maine," in the November election. Maine elected a Democratic governor and two of three congressmen last Monday.

"I have come here to get the same guarantee," Mr. Roosevelt added. The governor spoke from a temporary stand at the Union Pacific station. After the talk, the Democratic presidential nominee and his party drove around Cheyenne and visited Fort Warren, the famous rodeo grounds and the veterans hospital.

Slaying Suspect Commits Suicide

Charles E. DuBois, Questioned in Wife's Disappearance, Shoots Self

Plymouth, Mass.—(P)—The body of Mrs. Edith DuBois of Tuckahoe, N. Y., was dug from the ground here today a few hours after her husband, Charles E. DuBois, committed suicide by shooting in Quincy.

Quincy, Mass.—(P)—Charles E. DuBois, a Tuckahoe, N. Y., jeweler, committed suicide today to bring to a climax the investigation into the mysterious disappearance of his wife, Edith DuBois.

DuBois died at the Quincy hospital a short time after he had shot himself in the bath room of a rooming house where he had been living as "Ralph Anderson."

DuBois was unconscious from the time he entered the hospital until he died. Two state police officers were in the hospital while the doctors were trying to revive the man but they were unable to get any statement from him.

The shooting occurred while national guardsmen were searching the woods surrounding the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. DuBois at Great Herring pond in Plymouth for Mrs. DuBois' body and state detectives and local police were searching the swampy edge of a pond in Foxboro.

DuBois had been arrested in Plymouth in connection with the disappearance, but was released when a district court judge refused to issue a murder complaint against him, as requested by police, on the ground that the authorities lacked sufficient evidence.

Police received a call shortly before noon today to go to a Hancock-st. rooming house. There they found DuBois lying on the bathroom floor with a bullet wound in his head.

After a complete search of the room DuBois had occupied, the investigators said they had found nothing that would aid in solving the disappearance of the woman.

Government Drops Tax Suit Against Voliva

Chicago.—(P)—The government filed in U. S. district court today a discharge of its income tax claim against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of his religious colony at Zion, Ill.

The tax totaled $17,036, with interest bringing the sum up to $22,368 due for the year 1924. The discharge motion indicated Voliva had settled for an undisclosed amount or convinced the government he was not its debtor. The record was not made public and could only be disclosed by the board of tax appeals after a review at Washington.

Three Held in Wilson Murder are Liberated; All Charges Dismissed

Nazis Cite Von Papen's U. S. Record During War

Berlin.—(P)—The record of Chancellor Franz von Papen in the United States during the World war which his recall was requested by the American government for his activities while military attache of the German embassy was cast into the political broil here today by Joseph Goebbels, lieutenant of Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader.

The recall of Von Papen and Capt. Karl Boy-Ed was requested by Secretary Lansing in 1915 in connection with what were called improper activities regarding military and naval matters and also on the charge they were connected with certain persons who had been under suspicion.

Goebbels, in a speech at a meeting at the Sportsplatz last night attacked the chancellor for these activities and also for his alleged recent efforts to conclude a Franco-German military alliance.

"When the chancellor was in the United States he had a book containing the names of those who served Germany's cause," Goebbels said. "He lost it, with the result that many Germans went to penitentiaries for many years."

"We remember faintly," he added, "that several months ago a Central deputy had a conference at Paris with high French military officials to bring about a Franco-German military alliance. That was Franz von Papen."

Hermann Goerring, also a Hitler lieutenant and Reichstag president, denounced violently the government's action in the recent reichstag session when Von Papen produced the decree dissolving the parliament.

"A new opponent to our movement has arisen," he said, "who deters from the others in that he must be considerably more stupid. Do you believe our movement would retreat before a little heap of reaction?"

"The contest," he added, "isn't between the Reichstag and the government, but between a feudal Hereditary (aristocrats' society) and the German people."

Securities Sales Of Insull Concern Raised "Earnings"

Middle West Liabilities 310 Million, Assets 298 Million

Chicago.—(P)—Receivers of Middle West Utilities company, once a three billion dollar holding company embracing the vast Insull utilities system, reported in federal court today that the company's earnings had been enhanced by "profits from sale of securities" although in many cases these were merely exchanges of stock with subsidiaries.

The management also used stock dividends to build up the earnings showing, said Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers.

They approximated the Middle West liabilities at $310,000,000 and assets at $298,895,041, the latter comprising chiefly investments in subsidiaries and other companies. Of the liabilities, capital stock and surplus total $230,348,069.

The audit and receivers' report was the third of the Insull investment organizations placed in the hands of Federal Judge Walter G. Lindley this week. It comprised several hundred pages of financial statements and exhibits, with comments by the receivers.

Notes and accounts payable totaled $36,798,893.

Bank loans outstanding totaled $25,110,281, and of these the receivers said: "The bank loans are amply secured with plenty of collateral."

Future In Doubt

Hurley and McCulloch said the future of Middle West Utilities depends entirely upon "business conditions and good management."

From Jan. 1, 1930, until the holding company fell into receivership last April 14, it operated at a loss. Funds provided during that period were shown to have been $106,628,730 while expenditures were $110,355,271.

The receivers made it clear the audit was "not a detailed statement of cash and other transactions for the purpose of disclosing irregularities."

No estimate has been made of the value that can be realized from securities held by the company.

An item of $559,294 was shown as advances to employees to secure their stock investments.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson conferred with Judge Lindley today and was given permission to have his assistants examine the company records. Swanson said he wished to learn whether any laws, perhaps the blue sky laws of Illinois, were broken in the issuance of the various Insull stocks and bonds.

"So far," said Judge Lindley, "no evidence of criminality has been brought to my attention."

Earl of Craven Dies At Dwelling in France

Pau, France.—(P)—The Earl of Craven, who hurriedly left American soil in 1926, when immigration agents sought to question him concerning an affair with the countess of Cathcart, who was in process of being barred from the United States, died here yesterday. He was 35 years old.

Covelli, Consentino and Infusino Won't Face Trial

BONDS ARE VACATED
Seven Witnesses Testify In Hearing Held At Portage

Portage.—(P)—Murder charges against William Covelli, Frank Consentino and Frank Infusino, Kenoshans who had been accused of being involved in the slaying of Robert A. Wilson, Kenosha real estate operator, were dismissed today by Frank Gruner, justice of the peace. Freed after two weeks' confinement in the county jail here, they started immediately for their home.

The order of the justice swept aside all legal actions against them. Yesterday the men had been released on bonds by Circuit Judge Clayton Van Pelt. Wisconsin law requires that a petition for release on bond in a first degree murder action must be heard in a circuit court.

Justice Gruner refused to bind them over for trial, and the bonds were vacated.

7 Witnesses Testify

Justice Gruner this morning heard testimony by seven witnesses. Five of them were farmers living near Lodi who had seen Wilson in the company of several men near his farm there.

The farmers are Charles Knudson, Alfred Larson, Frank Richards, Ray Bohnsack and Mrs. Lena Gastrow. All were certain that Covelli, Consentino and Infusino were not with him. Other witnesses were Dr. John E. Bentley and Arthur Johnson, deputy sheriff.

Dist. Atty. Ross Bennett told the justice that he had taken samples of the handwriting of the three. It is certain, he said, that none of them wrote the promissory notes which Wilson had been forced to sign, and on the basis of which Frank Tylus, who later committed suicide, tried to seize Wilson's estate.

The three accused men, arrested when they were implicated by Tylus' confession, contended that he had named them in an effort to conceal identity of the persons actually involved in the plot to abduct and kill Wilson.

Shortly after they obtained their freedom on bonds totaling $30,000, the three men agreed to be questioned by District Attorney Ross Bennett and Harlan B. Rogers, prosecuting attorney, while Prof. Leonard Keller of Northwestern university registered their emotions on a lie detector. Results of the test were not revealed.

Covelli, described by authorities as the Kenosha "alky king," beamed and invited everyone to the wedding of his daughter, Rosa. The ceremony will take place in Kenosha Saturday morning at the Holy Rosary church.

Harold Gastrow, 16, of Lodi, Wis., and Sheriff A. E. Gilbert of Columbus, Calif., are now in Sacramento, Calif., where Victor Dominic, Racine, is fighting extradition in connection with the slaying.

Josephine Roth, friend of Frank Tylus, in whose confession Covelli, Consentino and Infusino were implicated, was still in custody of the district attorney, declined to comment on disposition of the charge filed against her. Authorities have revealed she is believed to have signed one of two notes for $40,000 which Wilson was forced to sign before he was slain on a farm near Lodi last Aug. 24.

Attorney John J. O'Keefe, counsel for Miss Roth, said his client also was subjected to the lie detector test with his permission yesterday. Neither the prosecutor nor O'Keefe would comment, however, on the findings. The arraignment of Miss Roth has been postponed several times because she was reported near collapse.

Another court hearing and further legal barrier held Dominic, wanted in connection with the murder in the city jail at Sacramento today pending a police-court hearing next Saturday.

A writ of habeas corpus was denied Dominic in the Sacramento superior court earlier this week. Dominic and his counsel appeared in police court yesterday to oppose a fugitive warrant, which was filed to hold Dominic incarcerated until Sept. 21, when his extradition to Wisconsin is to be considered by Gov. James Rolph, Jr.

Gets Self Arrested To Escape His Wife And Mother-in-Law

Marshfield.—(P)—Oliver Geishard telephoned to police and asked to be arrested. They accommodated him.

He told Judge M. E. Adler he wasn't drunk but that he would plead guilty to a charge of drunkenness. And when Judge Adler said, "thirty days," Geishard asked: "Can't you make it a year? I want to get away from my wife and mother-in-law for a while."

Geishard, refusing to allow anyone to pay his fine, departed happily for his vacation.

$414 Spent by 6 Men Seeking County Posts

All Candidates Must File Expense Reports by Saturday Noon

A total of $414.89 was spent by six candidates for county offices. They filed their pre-primary campaign expense reports today at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Candidates have but a single day to file reports, as they must all be in Hantschel's office before the close at noon tomorrow.

The largest amount reported today was that spent by Edward Lutz, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, $153.32. A. W. Laabs, candidate for the Republican nomination for the assembly from the first district, spent $138.88, the second largest amount. Other candidates and the amounts they spent include: Peter G. Schwartz, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, $85.17; F. N. Charleworth, candidate for the Republican nomination for county surveyor, $31.14; William Rohan, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the assembly from the second county district, $22.30; Peter E. Diney, candidate for the Democratic nomination for clerk of courts, $32.10.

Broughton Raps Senator Wheeler

Democratic Committeeman Urges Partisans to Support Candidates

Madison —(P)— Calling on Wisconsin Democrats to display party solidarity in the primary next Tuesday, Charles E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman, criticized in an address over State Radio Station WHA at Madison late yesterday the part Senator Burton K. Wheeler, (D. Mont.) has taken in this campaign.

"During the last few days we have witnessed the spectacle of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, elected by the Democrats of Montana, invading this state and speaking for the opposition party. As national committeeman and having in mind the welfare of Governor Roosevelt and the entire Democratic national and congressional ticket, I cannot believe that the fighting spirit of the Democrats who guided us to victory in April, that spirit which broke the Republican machine in Maine, will desert Governor Roosevelt next Tuesday," Broughton said.

"Senator Wheeler says the outcome of the Wisconsin primary is being watched by Progressives in all parts of the country, who gratefully remember the pioneer work done in the Progressive cause by the late Senator Robert M. La Follette. Let me say that it is true that the Republicans of the nation have their eyes upon Wisconsin in the primary next Tuesday and that they are anxious to see victory for the Republican party in this state as turning on our standard bearer, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. More than this, they are going to be heartened by a Republican victory and the battle for ballots in November will be more intense and immense sums of money will be poured in to defeat the candidate of the people, Governor Roosevelt."

"If you follow the advance and counsel of Mr. Wheeler then you will be deserting the party of Roosevelt and weakening his hands in the congress of the United States when he is elected president."

"I appeal to the Democrats of Wisconsin to strengthen the fighting forces of Democracy by your vote in the Democratic primary next Tuesday. Let the Republicans fight their battles. Let them shoot all the ammunition they have. The more they fire and the more wreckage they create the easier it will be for us to build in November."

DePere Bridge Will be Called 'Claude Allouez'

The new bridge, under construction across the Fox river at DePere, will be called the Claude Allouez bridge, it has been decided by the common council there. The name was chosen because the east approach of the bridge passes above the site of the mission which Father Allouez established at the spot. The new bridge, across which Highway 41 will pass, is being rapidly completed. It is expected that it will be ready for use next summer.

Ask Entire State To Observe Fire Prevention Week

Industrial Commission Heads Want Programs Oct. 9 to 15

Local observation of fire prevention week, Oct. 9 to 15, is asked in a state-wide appeal sent out by Fred M. Wilcox, chairman of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission.

The period of one week will be set aside by President Hoover, not merely in commemoration of the great Chicago fire which destroyed much property and cost 200 human lives, but as a practical campaign to save life and property, and to begin 52 weeks of fire prevention work and thought.

The United States' 1931 fire loss was $464,000,000, and that of Wisconsin more than $10,000,000, the industrial commission bulletin pointed out. Most of these fires, it added, were preventable.

Firemen will lead in the observance, inspecting public buildings, supervising home inspections by school children, addressing schools, and teaching methods of turning in fire alarms by box and by telephone. Trade associations and individual tradesmen have been requested to study the hazards of their particular trade or business, and to eliminate such hazards.

Schools, particularly, have been asked to cooperate in observing fire prevention week.

"A definite program should be carried out," the bulletin continues, "or attention called each day to some particular fire hazard or hazards. Firemen and leading citizens should be asked to address the schools, and unexpected fire drills held, sometimes with at least one exit obstructed."

NEW YORK'S NEW MAYOR IN DUEL OF WORDS WITH REDS

Communists went away from New York's City Hall complaining that Mayor Joseph V. McKee had tried to feed them "molasses syrup" after the conference pictured above. It was the new Chief Executive's first meeting with the radicals, and he is seen (extreme left) in a stern pose as he faced Carl Winter (right, foreground), spokesman for a Communist committee that demanded $100,000,000 cash relief for the jobless. "You can't tell me how I can legally satisfy your demands," replied the Mayor.

Blaine in Attack On Concentration Of Riches in U. S.

Gov. LaFollette Also Urges Need of Distribution Of Wealth

(By the Associated Press)

Gov. Philip LaFollette and Senator John J. Blaine, speaking to audiences in West Milwaukee and Wauwatosa last night, contrasted governmental policies of the Progressives with those of the stalwart Republicans in state and nation.

There is great need, Senator Blaine said, for Progressive members in congress and the state legislature to assist those who are now pioneering for better government. He criticized the financial and governmental system which, he said, allowed 80 per cent of the wealth to get into the hands of 5 per cent of the people.

Governor LaFollette also referred to the unequal distribution of wealth in analyzing what he said were the fundamental differences between the regular Republican philosophies and those of the Progressives.

"The regulars believe that if you take the people up at the top and make them prosperous the rest of us may catch a little of it as it trickles down," LaFollette said. "Progressives insist prosperity is built on the prosperity of the great mass of people."

"Ninety-three per cent of the production of the United States is sold in America. This means that if we are to sell the products of the farm and factory, we must have farmers, workers and small business men with money in their pockets to buy our goods."

Money Lacking

"They lack that money today, and consequently they cannot buy. This is the reason why, in the midst of rich harvests and abundant productive power in the factory, we have millions of people in want."

LaFollette said that two years ago the Progressives presented a platform containing specific pledges with reference to the government of the state and on the basis of each pledge they introduced constructive pieces of legislation to redeem them.

"Every one of those Progressive bills, with one exception, passed the house," he said. "The one exception was the bill against chain banking. Progressive bills not on the statutes of Wisconsin today, redeeming our platform of 1930, were defeated by regular Republicans in the senate."

Heavy Tax Burden

With approximately one-fourth of all the property in the state tax delinquent, Kohler said, the tax burden in Wisconsin weighs heavily on the property owner. The only public officials whom the taxpayers can thank for substantial reductions this year are their local officers, he said.

"The present governor says that he is opposed to the state property tax," Kohler said. "If he is opposed to it, why did he have the legislature enact, in a bill introduced by his own secretary, a state property tax law in which there is absolutely no limit whatever to the amount that can be levied?"

"The Progressives were perfectly frank, he added, they would say that they postponed the property tax because it was politically convenient to levy it in an election year. In lieu of a property tax, Kohler said, the Progressives depleted the balances in the state treasury by nearly $5,000,000 and collected an additional $5,000,000 by doubling the gasoline tax."

Kohler said he favored a law permitting the semi-annual payment of property taxes without penalty and declared the state property tax enacted by Governor LaFollette last year, which the governor predicted would probably apply for the first time in 1933, should be abolished completely and permanently.

John E. Chapple, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, outlined in a talk at Port Washington his position on questions raised in the current campaign and added that "the issue is between those who represent and work for a finer civilization and those who preach hate and Communism."

Would Cut Costs

"I favor sharply cutting down the cost of national government. We must return government to its first principles of protecting its citizens, of safeguarding their rights," Chapple said.

"I favor keeping the government out of any and all kinds of private business. Let those in public life confine themselves to the necessary functions of government."

"The American worker must be protected in his American standards. I am for the shorter work day and the shorter work week. The hourly and weekly wage rates were steadily rising and hours were being reduced up until the time the depression started. This will be the case again as soon as we drive the poison peddlers out of public life."

"I believe in protecting the American farmer in his American market. The market belongs to the American farmer. You will not find me voting against the best interests of the Wisconsin dairy farmer, the way Mr. Blaine did."

"I am for the immediate cash payment of the bonus. I feel those who offered their lives for their country deserve special consideration."

"Concerning prohibition, I believe in letting the people of each state decide what they want. So far as Wisconsin is concerned, I believe the majority want beer, and I shall vote for the immediate modification of the Volstead act."

Today and Tomorrow

Mr. Lippmann, formerly editor of the New York World, is one of the foremost liberal thinkers in the country. He has complete freedom of expression in the articles appearing under his signature.

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

CAMPAINING: THE PRESIDENT AND THE GOVERNOR

By his statement on the bonus the President has made the issue perfectly definite. The question is whether the American Legion will demand, whether the next Congress and the next President will approve, the payment of some $2,000,000,000 which the country does not owe the veterans. The matter has never before been presented so clearly. Now that the truth has been set down those who continue to demand cash payment of the face value of the certificates fall into two classes: those who are incapable of understanding what they are doing and those who are unashamed to ask for money that does not belong to them.

There are two sides to many public questions but there are not two sides to this question. By no stretch of the imagination, by no possible manipulation of fact and theory, can it be denied that the demand for immediate cash payment is a demand for an outright gift of some $2,000,000,000 over and above anything that the veterans are entitled to under the law which they themselves forced Congress to enact.

That the ordinary veteran has not understood this we may well believe. He has a certificate given him by the government which entitles him to receive a certain sum

No Pauper's Grave For Miss Millette

Coroner Still Hopes for Instructions as to Disposition of Body

Sacramento, Calif. —(P)— There will be no pauper's grave for Miss Dorothy Millette, identified as the "other woman" in the life of Paul Bern, self-slain motion picture executive and husband of Jean Harlow, blonde film actress.

Coroner James R. Garlick said today $30 had been found in the case of the woman who leaped from a Sacramento river steamer two days after the body of Bern, with two pistols nearby, was found in the Hollywood home he deeded to Miss Harlow at their marriage two months before his death.

The coroner, however, still hoped to receive from Henry Bern, brother of Paul, instructions concerning the disposition of the body.

An inquest here tonight was expected to record Miss Millette's death as a suicide. She disappeared from a San Francisco hotel Sept. 6 and engaged a cabin aboard the steamer Delta King bound for Sacramento. The morning of Sept. 7 her cabin was found deserted. Her body was found in the river last Wednesday and identified by clothing.

Until the Governor produces a plan which meets his admirable specifications, it will have to be said, I think, that on the matter of raising farm prices the least is in the right place and his head is in the right place, but that the prospect of a plan which will suit both his heart and his head is as yet quite dim.

Yet it is impressive that the Governor has fixed such stern limitations upon a plan to fulfill his promises. The promises may be impossible within the limitations. But he is as definite about the limitations as about the promises. His friends are entitled to say that this shows that he is trying to use his prestige in the West and South as a leader of opinion rather than as a caterer of opinion. For severe as is his criticism of Republican policies, there is not one phrase in the speech which associates him with the Bryan tradition, with any scheme for solving the farm problem by means of inflation or by subsidies. So if he can continue to hold the confidence of the farming population on the principles of the Topeka speech, if he can himself hold to those principles, he will have gone a long way to dispel the belief that he is owned by the sectional coalition which nominated him at Chicago.

Sheriff John Lappen Turns Fireman; Aids In Putting Out Fire

Sheriff John Lappen yesterday turned fireman and helped a farmer in the town of Oneida, whose name he did not learn, extinguish a grass fire that was threatening his farm buildings. Sheriff Lappen was driving along the highway when he noticed that a tractor, which was being used in filling a silo, had backfired and set fire to a load of corn. As the farmer drove the corn away from his farm buildings, burning embers fell to the ground and set the grass afire and Sheriff Lappen assisted the farmer in putting out the blaze with water and brooms, thus preventing it from spreading to nearby farm buildings.

New Students Welcomed by College Head

Learn to Adjust Yourself, Dr. Wriston Tells Freshmen

An official welcome was extended to the freshman students at Lawrence college Thursday evening by Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of the college and Marshall Wiley, president of the All College club, at Memorial chapel. "College is a trial world in which the student can test himself in his powers of adjustment," Dr. Wriston said. "It is a place where a student can find wherein his strength lies and his deficiencies."

Approximately 50 per cent of the freshmen do not receive their college diplomas. There are three reasons for these failures, financial difficulty, inability, and the failure to develop the will to learn. Only a comparatively small number drop out for the first two reasons, but a large number fail because they do not develop the will to learn although they have ability.

"The student is given leisure in school from business and economic life to become wise. In striving for vocational efficiency the student should develop the will to learn, attain a coherent personality and an acquisition of a sense of values."

To develop a coherent personality the student should be able to be at peace with himself and to associate with others, Dr. Wriston pointed out. Many freshmen are away from home for the first time and are without the help of their parents. The developments of this coherent personality depends upon the student himself, he said.

Materialism should be dominant, but spiritual, intellectual and religious values should come first, he stated. Emphasis was placed upon the virtues of citizenship and the rewards of friendship. He told the students to learn the appreciation of beauty in pictures, in music and urged each student to have a picture in his room to study and to attend the artist series, which are sponsored by the Conservatory of Music.

Religion is the cement that binds together the philosophy of the things of life," he said. "Without it life has no meaning. The student should learn to associate it into his world of things."

Marshall Wiley gave a short address of welcome. The meeting opened with the singing of the college song, under the direction of Carl J. Waterman, dean of the Conservatory of Music.

877 Students in Finance Program

Members Pay 15 Cents Weekly for 35 Weeks For School Activities

The Appleton high school weekly activities finance plan has been joined by 877 students and teachers so far this year.

Members of the finance plan contribute 15 cents for 35 weeks, or a total of $5.25. This pays for three or four home football games, three track meets, four hockey games, six tennis contests, two debates, one speech, 10 or 15 student leycum numbers, one oratorical and declamatory contest, 30 issues of the Tallyman, the weekly newspaper, and a subscription to the Clarion, the annual year book. The cost of these activities outside of a group plan would be $15.

Miss Hilda Harn will be the banker for the system.

The finance plan, inaugurated here five years ago, has brought inquiries from schools in 15 different states, according to H. H. Helbie principal.

Reduce Weight Limits For Livestock Loadings

Outagamie-co farmers will benefit from the decision of the three railroads which this week filed with the public service commission at Madison notice of the reduction of the minimum weight for livestock to 10,000 pounds to secure carload rates. The minimum rate now is: 22,000 for cattle, 12,000 pounds for sheep, and 16,000 pounds for hogs. The Chicago and Northwestern, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroads have already filed notices and the Soo Line railroad is expected to do so soon. The Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets, the Wisconsin Livestock association, with the public service commission, have been asking the lower rate. Competition with truck shipments is said to be partly responsible for the reduction.

Increase in expenditures in ONE YEAR by La Follette	$20,407,069.18

The present governor and his clique claim they have reduced taxes.

But look at the figures above.

In one fiscal year (ending July 1, 1932) the present administration spent $20,407,069.18 more than Governor Kohler (year ending July 1, 1930)—an increase of over 33% in a single year.

Can you spend more money—and at the same time save? Can the governor? Can the state? Certainly not!

Somebody must pay!

YOU MUST PAY!

When the present governor and his clique try to tell you that they have reduced taxes, remember that somebody—YOU—

YOU MUST PAY!

You must pay the $20,407,069 increase in state expenditures for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1932.

You must pay the $1,400,000 reduction in gas and railroad taxes when he allowed them to pay only half as much as formerly in the scandalous overhead crossing deal.

You must pay the fat salaries of 103 high priced commissions, bureaus, divisions and departments.

You must pay the fancy salaries of the huge army of over 10,277 employees in the present political machine, drawing over $1,300,000 per month, more than $16,000,000 per year.

You must pay your part of the $8,000,000 increase in gasoline taxes.

YOU—The Taxpayer—Fools the Bills

In the coming primary election Tuesday, September 20th, remember that the only way to reduce taxes is to cut costs. Honesty and ability will end waste, will reduce expense.

Yours is the power to rid the state of the political burden that drives industry and jobs out of Wisconsin.

Yours is the power to end the bankruptcy of our farmers.

Yours is the power to save the independent merchant and professional man from ruin.

Drum Elected President of Fire Chiefs

Wisconsin Association Awards Next Convention To Wisconsin Rapids

R. H. Drum, Green Bay, was elected president of the Wisconsin State Fire Chiefs' association for the next year at the closing session of the 1932 convention yesterday afternoon at Appleton Vocational school. Wisconsin Rapids was selected for the next convention city.

Chief Drum served the association last year as vice president. He succeeded George Kuehnau, West Bend, Harold Kohlmann, Horicon, was named vice president; Arthur J. Bahr, Two Rivers, was re-elected secretary; and James J. Kupic, Manitowish, was re-elected treasurer.

Two other cities, Hudson and Rhinelander, sought the convention with Wisconsin Rapids. Three ballots were necessary for Wisconsin Rapids to win the award.

The present system, under which the state fire marshal is controlled by the insurance commissioner, was attacked by the fire chiefs in a discussion which led to adoption of a resolution instructing its legislative committee to represent the group in an effort to have the state legislature change the law to permit the fire marshal's office to be operated as an independent unit. The firemen also will seek appropriation of additional funds so that the fire marshal's staff may be adequately manned.

Refuse to Lift New York Embargo On Untested Herds

Outagamie-co Cattlemen to Suffer as Result Of Ruling

The New York department of agriculture has notified the Wisconsin department of agriculture that its embargo against importation into that state of Badger cattle from herds that have not been tested for contagious abortion would remain in effect and that under no circumstances would cattle be allowed to come into New York from herds that had not been tested.

Many Outagamie-co cattle have been shipped to New York in the past but under the new ruling this trade will be immediately stopped as there are no herds in this county which can qualify according to Gustav A. Sell, county agent.

As has been stated this means a virtual exclusion of Wisconsin dairy cattle from the New York market. Charles L. Hill of the Wisconsin department of markets will leave Friday for Albany to appear before the New York board in an attempt to obtain a change in the order.

In view of the message today, it is believed his mission will be fruitless. Hill said this morning that the New York order was simply a boycott against Wisconsin cattle and said that it was by no means a protective measure because of the little accomplishment that has been made so far in any of the states to secure a testing of herds against contagious abortion. In Wisconsin there are at present only 144 tested herds.

Hill hinted that retaliatory measures might be taken against New York and said that the Wisconsin legislature might be asked to declare a Wisconsin embargo against New York cheese on account of the fact that that state in compelling tuberculosis tests of cheese producing herds.

Phone Dispute Brings Answer From McGovern

Company President Accuses Commission of Political Play

Milwaukee — Pointing out the charges of the Wisconsin public service commission were well timed for the state primary elections, W. R. McGovern, president of the Telephone company, replied to assertions the commission that officers of the utility had presented misleading information to secure rate increases.

The statement of the commission accompanied a decision and order denying the company's application for a 25 per cent rate increase in Madison. It charged that commission accountants in the statewide investigation of the Wisconsin Telephone company had found evidence the former railroad commission granted the company rate increases amounting to several hundred thousand dollars in 30 cities of the state in the years 1924 to 1928, inclusive, partly on the basis of untrue and misleading representations.

Statements of both the commission and the telephone company take the "charitable" view of the situation.

"Either the commission fully appreciating the unfairness and lack of truth of the statement it makes in its opinion has some motive in doing this which we cannot fully appreciate at this time, or the same is the result, as we much fear, of inexperience and lack of understanding of the subject matter on the part of the commission's various staffs who, with few exceptions, as everyone knows, have had absolutely no practical experience in matters of this kind until they were brought into the offices of the commission less than two years ago," Mr. McGovern stated.

"Being charitably inclined in spite of the unjustifiable action of the commission in writing this sort of a decision, I am hoping that the latter is the true reason for this condition."

Hunters Asked to Be Careful Not to Set Forests Afire

Extreme Caution Urged by Wisconsin Conservation Commission

Madison — The state conservation commission today called upon hunters, campers and tourists to exercise extreme caution against forest fires.

Nine counties of the north have experienced a drought during the summer months and the water levels of streams and swamps are at present unusually low, the commission said.

The first of this month was reached with a low acreage of burned forest lands despite the fact that fires were numerous. The reorganization fire fighting units, according to the commission, has been able to hold fires to comparatively small areas and has suppressed innumerable fires.

From April to September of this year there were 253 fires in the northern area, 579 in the northern area, 361 in the northwestern area and 124 in the central area, or a total of 1307.

The new observation towers that have been erected place practically every foot of the forest areas under observation," the commission said. "The communication net that has been developed makes it possible for the fire-fighting organization to begin the work of suppression with the least possible period of lagged discovery of discovery and suppression. The additions made to personnel and fire-fighting equipment indicate that an effective organization is fast rounding into shape. Light trucks have been purchased in quantities sufficient to supply the necessary transportation. Power pumps, back pumps and hand tools in sufficient quantities will be available in the various districts in sufficient numbers to handle the fall hazard."

Says Sol Ready to Pay in Bank Case

Reynolds Discusses Capital City Bank Failure in Green Bay Speech

Green Bay — The Capital City bank case, LaFollette taxation and unemployment problems, and former Governor Kohler's charges of persecution in the corrupt practice case two years ago were among the topics discussed by Attorney General John W. Reynolds in an address here last night in the interest of the Progressive slate of candidates.

Responsibility for the overdraft of state funds in the Capital City bank was placed squarely upon Sol Levitan, state treasurer, by Mr. Reynolds, who declared "if the surety companies don't pay the loss, Sol Levitan will pay it. He told me he would and he's got the money. The state will have every cent of its money back before I leave office in January."

"The state had more money in the bank than the law allowed. We admit it. For years Sol had carried more than the sum provided—perhaps he never had read the law."

"We met with representatives of two of the best surety companies in the United States. They said: 'Don't take the money out now, it you do the bank will fail. We'll give you a double premium and we'll give you a bond for $600,000.' We agreed and told Sol to take the money out as soon as he could, in view of the condition of the bank."

"After the bank failed, the surety companies announced that they would not pay. We sued and won a judgment for the $250,000, legal limit, and then they said they'd fight on the other $350,000. But Judge Hoppman didn't even let the case into court and gave us judgment for $325,000. If the companies don't pay, Sol Levitan will."

James Hughes, De Pere candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Eighth district, will be the principal speaker at a Democratic rally at Freedom high school at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. This meeting is one of a series being conducted throughout the county with Hughes as the speaker. Henry Van Dyke is the Freedom committeeman.

It Is Said--

That employees of the postoffice, telephone company and Post-Crescent are going to miss the daily excitement of street corner collisions after Superior-st is widened. Since the opening of the postoffice and Post-Crescent buildings traffic at the corner of Superior and Washington-sts has been congested that there have been a number of collisions there. It is expected that the widening of the street will reduce the traffic hazards.

Warns Pedestrians to Observe Signal Lights

A warning to pedestrians to cross street intersections, where there are traffic signals, only when the green light gives them the right of way, was issued today by Police Chief George T. Prim. Chief Prim pointed out that when pedestrians attempt to cross the street against the red light they are constantly in danger of being run down by automobiles. He declared that the traffic signals are put in operation for the safety and protection of the pedestrian as well as for the autoist, and that their usefulness will be nullified unless the lights are observed.

Rubin Promises 50 Million Budget If He Is Elected

Proposes to Cut Down Bureaus and Impose Occupational Tax

(By the Associated Press)

William B. Rubin, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, in a talk at South Milwaukee last night, promised to adopt an annual budget of $50,000,000 for state expenses for the next two fiscal years if he is elected.

Rubin proposed to relieve the burden of taxes by reducing the number of state bureaus and commissions from 54 to 10, through the elimination of unnecessary office holders, and by levying an occupational tax. All employers who produce articles for sale would be put in the occupational tax class, he explained.

"To the industrialist of Wisconsin I pledge that no tax or burdens shall be placed on him that are not levied by other states," Rubin said. "I want industry to remain in Wisconsin and industry to make a profit here. I shall make every effort to assist labor and the employer in solving their problems."

Rubin further based his plea for support on what he termed a practical plan for unemployment; the necessity of reducing the rate of interest on farm foreclosures; a plan for strengthening the state banking department; and assurance that he will oppose the "artificial milk trust" that has developed in the state.

Against High Interest

"The state must refrain from taking over farm lands for unpaid taxes and must go out of the usurious business of charging the farmer 10 per cent on his unpaid taxes as a condition of redemption," he said. "The state should never charge over 3 per cent on delinquent taxes."

Rural Teachers Make Plans for Contests

A group of rural school teachers from the towns of Maine and Cicero, who met at the Riverview school this week, made plans for a spelling and declamatory contest among the pupils of their respective schools. Miss Grace Prentice, teacher of the Riverview school, is the chairman for the district composing the two towns. The county has been divided into districts and the rural teachers of each meet regularly to plan the course of studies for all the schools in the county. It was following this regular meeting that the teachers made the plans for the contest.

Mitchell Traces College History For New Students

Lawrence Established Here Before There Was Single Dwelling

The history of Lawrence college was outlined by Rexford S. Mitchell, alumni secretary, at the Friday morning convocation in Lawrence Memorial chapel for freshmen students. It was brought out that Lawrence college was established here before there was even one dwelling in what is now Appleton.

Amos Lawrence, an easterner, promised the aid of $10,000 to any group which would raise an additional $10,000 for the founding of a college here. At a meeting of the Wisconsin-conference of the Methodist church the offer was accepted. On Jan. 15, 1847, a territorial charter was granted for this purpose. As the population in Wisconsin and schools were scarce, a preparatory school was first erected. This was completed in 1850 and 70 students were enrolled, Mitchell declared.

The college was completed in 1853, and the corner stone was laid in main hall. The main hall is still used for the majority of classes. Edwin Cook was the first president. The school was co-educational from the start, although queer rules were enforced regarding them, according to our standards of today.

Room and board cost the student $1.50 per week. Each room was equipped with a stove. Provided the student cut his own wood from the campus, fuel cost him $1.50 per school year. Three small villages sprang up in the vicinity of the college, but these later became incorporated into the city of Appleton. The Civil War cut the enrollment of the school to a low figure, but after the war the enrollment increased each year.

Today Lawrence graduates approximately 100 students each year. One building housed the college in 1847, but now the Lawrence plant includes 19 buildings and more than seventy-five acres of campus and recreational fields. Evergrowing endowments make possible a Lawrence faculty that ranks with the best learned groups of any institution. Lawrence is an institution accredited by all colleges and universities, Mitchell concluded.

Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of the college, will speak on Choosing a Vocation at the Saturday morning convocation.

Work Starts In November On New Locks

$180,000 Project Will Require Three Years
To Complete

Construction work on the new government locks at Rapid Croche in the Fox river, four miles below Kaukauna, will be started as soon as the navigation season closes the latter part of November, according to Nelson Wightman, government engineer. The entire project will cost approximately $180,000. The locks will be erected over a period of three years, construction work being done only during the winter time so as not to interfere with navigation during the regular season, Wightman stated. During the coming winter most of the work will consist of the erection of a large retaining wall leading up to the locks, and one concrete wall of the lock itself. The new structure will be erected above the old locks which have been deteriorating during the past few years. A total of 7,700 yards of concrete will be used in the new structure and it will be equipped with fabricated steel gates. Between 40 and 50 men working on two shifts will be employed to do the work. The contract for furnishing building materials—concrete, sand and gravel has been awarded to the Wells Coal and Dock Co., De Pere. Repair work on federal locks at Berlin and White River already is underway, Wightman said. Approximately $40,000 is being expended to do this work. Gates and lock floors are being replaced or repaired, and new mitre sills installed.

Americans during the first year of the republic, 1789.

Papers just received by the National Museum library bear stamps issued under this long-forgotten federal revenue act.

Bonds, bills of exchange and promissory notes had to carry tax stamps ranging from 10 to 75 cents. Notes were taxed five-eighths of a cent per dollar up to $50. A $100 note had to carry a $1 stamp and a $500 note a $2 stamp. Bills of lading of goods sent out of a state were required to pay a 10-cent tax. An inventory of a catalogue of goods required a 50-cent stamp.

Mr. Munn is professor of English at Harvard University, resigning from his post as dean of the Washington Square College of New York University to accept the Harvard professorship. He is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. John Pixley Munn of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eklund spent the Labor day weekend in Norfolk, Vt. Mrs. Eklund is Pennell Crosby, formerly of the University of Wisconsin and Rhinelander, and Mr. Eklund is from Tomahawk.

Miss Ruth Finney, wife of Robert S. Allen, former Madison newspaperman who is famous as one of the two authors of the anonymous

"Washington Merry-Go-Round" and the new "More Merry-Go-Round," has returned from a short vacation in Atlantic City, N. J.

"Bob" Allen lost his job as chief of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor for his part in the first volume about official life in Washington, and now the Baltimore Sun has made it unanimous by discharging Drew Pearson, his collaborator, who has long covered the state, war, and navy departments for the Sun. WHY CHEVROLET QUIT

Careful investigation demonstrates that the Chevrolet plant of General Motors at Janesville has quit Wisconsin for the stated reason that we are hostile to industry.

This plant employed 1400 men and the steady work it gave them created more man-hours and a greater payroll than all the grade crossings constructed under Governor LaFollette's program. This is not a criticism of the governor's overhead program which was meritorious. But it serves to show how much we may expect through political action, or rather how little, in comparison to what may be expected through proper and equitable governmental policies extended to all.

General Motors quit Wisconsin because it considered the expense of operating here as a burden too great to bear, particularly under existing circumstances. The decision was made at Detroit by general headquarters.

The city of Janesville through its city manager and its Chamber of Commerce did its utmost in a frantic endeavor to get a reversal of the order. General Motors calmly replied that it was operating in a great many states, that it was familiar, and minutely, with all the obligations placed on it elsewhere and that Wisconsin's attitude made it quite impossible for it to continue operations here. After all efforts by the authorities failed the Janesville city manager, Mr. Traxler, issued this statement:

"Janesville, by this action, over which it has no control, becomes a stricken community—with 1,400 men definitely thrown out of work and facing the loss of their entire savings invested in their homes in this city. Business houses, not only in Janesville, but throughout the state, will suffer. The relief program becomes acute and the faith and hope of a people are destroyed."

General Motors is a great concern with a reputation of treating its men fairly and generously and assuming at all times a liberal attitude toward public obligations. Its general officers have cited among other things that Wisconsin's unemployment insurance measure written by a good-hearted college professor who thought it was about his turn to lay a few more bricks on the back of industry, was one of the reasons it quit.

No commonwealth can afford to repeal a law or alter a course merely at the behest of some citizen or corporation, however great or influential, but no commonwealth either should pass laws creating extensive burdens without some understanding concerning the burdens already existing.

How many industries in Wisconsin are there not already mortgaged to the ears? How many industries in Wisconsin that weren't willing to and did pledge their last assets to borrow money in order to keep men employed and homefires burning? Certainly that kind of conduct upon their part, which has been proven a thousand times in this depression, should earn something for them more than the feeling that the government at Madison is hostile to them, that they cannot go before it and discuss their problems and their burdens, that a Madison government doesn't consider itself successful unless it makes industry wince and stagger on its already heavy course.

Two actual examples will serve to explain the result we face today.

When businessmen, fortified by the despairing report of the circuit judges of the state, went to Madison some years ago to point out the serious inroads on the state's wealth made by crime—because every dollar stolen from Wisconsin really comes out of Wisconsin's pocketbook—they were treated to a brilliant piece of literature about like this:

"Ah-hal I know what you're up to. You are trying to enslave workers and destroy the farmers, and I, John J. Blaine, will protect these people from your crafty, devilish purposes. Help! Ring the bells! Alarm the countryside! The cossacks are coming."

An extreme example? Many more of about the same stripe could be cited.

And now what happens? All through the years the banks just in this community have been paying out an increase of about $25,000 a year for burglary insurance but it really isn't the banks. It is the people, the stockholders and depositors. Think of the tremendous amount that makes for the whole state in order to build up the political career of Mr. Blaine.

And consider what the business interests which really understand the truth of this circus performance must consider.

There were members in the last legislature who voted against the law that became the last straw in driving Chevrolet out of the state. When the bill was up for discussion they cautioned others that in prosperous times burdens might be built on industry but the present was a precarious time in which to erect them. A few more independent legislators and Chevrolet would still be in the state, 1400 men would not be out of employment and 1400 families would not be facing serious problems.

Yet, officially from the Capital Times comes the declaration that these legislators who voted to go cautiously "are enemies of the people." Some of this sounds like a vaudeville skit, it is so unreal.

We cannot shake the conviction that it is the utterly unreasonable things of this character that get industry disgusted enough to board up its windows and move hence.

A BIG YEAR FOR SOMETHING

We have had the Year of the Big Fire. We have also had the Year of the Big Wind (no relation to politics).

This may be a year known to our grandchildren as the Smasher of Slogans and the Crumbler of Paste and Plaster Idols. Certainly it is a most embarrassing year for the Republican party.

First came the declaration set to music in 1928 by the vice president in this language, "My friends, you are enjoying just another year of Republican prosperity." That one was not even taken out of the cedar chest but left covered with moth balls.

Then came "the experiment, noble in all, "As goes Maine, so goes the nation," cils concerning the use of this idea which had been so successfully used only four short years ago, but eventually it was chucked into a corner although the President turns and looks at it fondly every now and then as he brushes away a tear. It took a lot of cheek to make up such a slogan, about as much as if the Democrats used the same thing with the insertion of Alabama, but its very certainty seemed to make it safe.

In the past it was good stuff. It went over big. The rest of the country seemed to forget that the Republicanism of Maine was almost as evident as the rocks in its soil.

Now apologies, explanations, are in order. Maine, we are told from some corners, is not a fair criterion. The slogan, it appears, was just a joke. No one had been expected to take it seriously.

Political slogan making appears to be a dangerous business. It is like the Medicine Man who pretended charmed life but made bum guesses. The Indians used to deal with him in a matter-of-fact manner. They tied him to a tree and threw hatchets at him—too rough and harsh of course for modern days but a system just the same that carried a poetic touch of justice.

The Roosevelt star shines with an increased luster. But the Republicans are going to work. They aren't licked yet by a long shot. They have excellent recuperative powers. The beating in Maine may turn out to be a blessing to them because it will induce them to do their utmost.

Opinions Of Others

UNDERSTOOD AND CONDEMNED

Signs multiply in every part of the nation that the American people, regardless of party, realize the extent and degree of the outrage which Tammany and James J. Walker perpetrate upon an upright public servant for doing his duty as he sees it. The Republican and independent press join in denouncing the false grounds upon which deadly political reprisals are planned in behalf of a discredited public official who lacks the fortitude to fight to a finish unless the battlefield is of his own choosing and all the weapons are placed in his hands. The people of the country now more and more are made aware that Tammany would sacrifice the national party to which it professes to belong to punish a New York Democratic governor and presidential nominee for declining to exculpate the machine's chief officerholder in advance of full hearing in the absence of proofs of innocence.

Despite Mr. Walker's heat and rhetoric, common sense and the plain facts make it clear that the real basis of his statement is a full and untried by the press and public as the nature and purpose of the political plot to destroy Governor Roosevelt. The glittering "personality" of which so much has been heard, and which has for years been offered to New York City in lieu of labor and duty, has not blinded the rest of America to the plain facts and implications of the ex-mayor's resignation. The country knows that, to cover the circumstance of quitting under fire, the impartial and firm conduct of the governor of New York has been twisted into bias which the record flatly contradicts. It knows that the project to seek "vindication" on the very party ticket headed by the state magistrate so vulgarly and untruthfully represented at a plot for political assassination laid against the Democratic party in the nation.

Every interest of this community demands that the plot shall not succeed. Its evils go far beyond the issue whether Franklin D. Roosevelt shall be kept from the presidency or whether the Democratic party shall be sacrificed by a band of political cutthroats intent upon their loot. It is New York City which will be the chief sufferer, in domestic business, in reputation, unless the people of New York rise up to prevent Tammany from selling out the town for plunder and revenge, unless they refuse to be instruments in achieving such a result, on such a basis, they cannot ask that the city be esteemed elsewhere for conscience or for character.—New York Times.

Basing our theory on both observation and experience, we are about to offer an idea which should eliminate anesthetic and drugs. Just give the patient a late night and feed him a heavy lunch the next noon. It works.

Governor Roosevelt is hopping back and forth across the nation making speeches end upon end. There is plenty of material, particularly of the anvil-clanking type, with which the governor has to work.

Prexy Hoover, it seems, will not do so much traveling and he'll confine his speeches to the accomplishments of the administration. Dunno whether Herb is going to make long ones trying to eliminate the wheat from the chaff and give us a finer, more beautiful picture of the past four years, or whether his speeches about the administration accomplishments will be of Coolidge length.

ZINNIAS

Old-fashioned Zinnias seem to me
Like certain patient friends and true,
Who seek no words of flattery
Nor any praise for what they do,
But are the first when sorrows fall
With offerings of help to call.

Some friendships and some flowers appear
Too pale and delicate to last.
Who loves them dwells in constant fear
Of thoughtless word or icy blast.
The last contrary wind may end
The fragile bloom or fragile friend.

But Zinnias have a sturdier way.
No pampering from friends they ask.
Wherever planted they will stay
And blithely go about their task.
Whatever winds or storms descend
On Zinnias you can depend.

From 1,000 to 2,000 Christians had been massacred in Smyrna by the Turks by the fire which swept the Armenian and other quarters of the seaport recently evacuated by the Greek army. It was charged in semi-official and other Greek messages from Athens received in London the previous day. Among the Turkish outrages was the carrying off of many girl pupils of the American girls college, it was alleged.

Miss Dorothy Lillian Hubbard, daughter of Mrs. John E. Hubbard, 431 Riverside-drive, New York, and George Horan Mory, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mory, were to be married Sept. 27 in the chantry of St. Thomas church, New York City. It was announced.

APOLOGY TO WALL PAPER INDUSTRY.

May 28, 1932, the subject of the article in this column was "A Case of Wall Paper Poisoning" which had occurred in England. I quoted the findings of the analyst—one-third of a grain of arsenic in the seven year old child's body, and his observation that the arsenic was given off in gaseous form from the wall paper in the sitting room in the home of the little victim, due to the effects of spores of a kind of mold that grows vigorously on damp paper. The wall paper was dyed green with either Paris green (copper arsenite) or Schweinfurt green (aceto-arsenite of copper).

I called particular attention to the fact that the arsenic had been absorbed by inhalation of the gas formed by the mold—lest some "authorities" explain that it was absorbed thru the pores of the skin. So far, so good. But I went on to say that "arsenic is an ingredient in many wall papers, in the ink or color, especially in green papers." That was where I tipped over the apple cart. The wall paper industry of the United States didn't like it a bit. And I don't blame the wall paper industry. I should have limited my assertion to apply to wall paper manufactured twenty or thirty years ago or earlier. Or I should have explained that the use of arsenical colors in the preparation of wall paper and articles of flowers is now only of historical interest in the United States—the aniline colors having been universally adopted in these industries here.

No doubt much wall paper still on the walls of old homes contains a large amount of arsenic and gives off arsenic-compounds in gaseous form from the action of mold upon the paper. But the present wall paper industry is not responsible for that, so I offer this explanation and apology.

Many modern homes have no arsenic in the wall paper, if they have any wall paper, it is probably true that the hazard of chronic arsenical poisoning from domestic and industrial sources is much greater today than it has ever been before. Fur workers and wearers, greenhouse workers, orchard and garden workers (arsenic in sprays), side handlers, taxidermists, makers of handlers of sheep dip, glass makers, smelters, etc., are exposed. Arsenic compounds are much used in preservatives and insecticides, in baths, powders, sprays.

Persistent conjunctivitis, coryza, eczematous rashes, anemic pallor and obscure nervous lesions without known cause should arouse suspicion of chronic arsenic poisoning.

One manufacturer of wall paper sends me detailed description of the thirty-second part negro blood.

Arson—There is no known way to distinguish negro blood from white blood. The legend that a black baby (throwback) may be born to white or light gray parents some generations after an admixture of black or dark gray blood is in actual life. The offspring is always as white as the average of the two parents. The blood of a negro is in all respects identical with the blood of a white person.

Crude Attempt to Dry Up.
Please give your opinion of the advice in this magazine article. It strikes us as an unphysiological suggestion. (D. S. M.)

Answer—The advice, which purports to be medical, is that children should have no milk or other liquid after 3 or 3:30 p. m., so that they can remain dry over night. It is not only unphysiological but irrational. The bed-wetting child should have milk at the evening meal and reasonable amounts of water to drink if thirsty. If your child wets the bed, write in, give the child's age, inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. We will mail you instructions for correcting the habit. Instructions will not be given unless you make it clear you are the parent or guardian of the child.

Witch Hazel.
In my twenties I did much yachting off New Jersey and Long Island coasts. In the spring when I started in I bathed my face, neck and shoulders with witch hazel several times a day. I never suffered from sunburn. (C. E. K.)

Answer—Harmless, the I do not believe it will prevent sunburn. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE shooting star cried, "This is fun. I'll show you how my shooting's done. Hang on, now, to your basket, 'cause we're going very fast."
"I'll go for all that I am worth and head directly 'tward the earth." Then Duncy cried, "Oh, my, how long is this trip going to last?"

"What do you care?" asked Scouty. "We are just as safe as we can be as long as we don't tumble out. I think this trip is great."

"Why do you look for trouble, lad? So far not one thing's turned out bad. You always seem to worry and that's one thing that I hate."

"All right," said Duncy, "I'll keep still. I will admit this is a thrill. I will not say another word until we land some place."

"We heard of shooting stars before, so should have know what was in store. It seems, right now, that we are in a mighty speedy race."

The star was like a racing steed because it kept on gaining speed. Down, down they went, till Windy cried, "I see the earth below."

"Look at the trees. They seem real near and that's where we're bound for, I fear. No wonder Duncy was afraid. My spirit, too, is low."

Just then a great big cloud drew nigh and, as it floated through the sky, the little star whizzed through it. For a moment all was dark. Then they sailed back into the light to find that all was quite all right. Wee Coppy caught his breath and cried, "This surely is a lark."

Alas! The ride was due to flop. Before they had a chance to stop, the bottom of the basket ripped. "Twas greeted by a shout."

"We're doomed! We're doomed!" one Tyny cried. "We cannot hang tight to the side." In just about a moment all the Tynies toppled out. (Copyright, 1932 NEA Service, Inc.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Senior Sidney Franklin, the blond Brooklyn bullfighter, confesses: across a bowl of pretzels that he is in love with a girl, but so far hasn't revealed his grand passion to her.

The matador flipped the salt from his little red mustache and admitted to me that the fair lady is of the stage and ah, so very beautiful and lovely. He wants to marry her.

"I have just the feeling that when the proper time comes I will be able to make my sentiments known to her and everything will be all right."

Senior Franklin became a bull fighter just because some friends in Mexico said an Americano wasn't fitted for the game. He wanted to prove that Sidney Franklin was.

The Flatbush caballero plans to take his beloved to his 100,000 acres in Mexico and settle down when he is 30. He says he's 27 now, and in three more years will have enough pesos laid away to stop killing bulls and begin to raise them on his rancho.

Bull-Fighting Pays

This Brooklyn boy who made good in the bull rings of the great capitals of the Latin world has earned as much as $260,000 in a single season as a matador. In one afternoon, down in Bogota, he made $18,000. That ought to make Babe Ruth trade his bludgeon for a sword.

Franklin shudders when he remembers that he came very near spending his life working for a living as a commercial artist.

After graduation from Colombia university, he started his art career here at 18. He happened to go to Mexico for a three-month vacation and liked it so well he stayed a year and a half. Then his family urged him to come home.

He hadn't seen a bull-fight, and a friend advised him to before leaving. He did, and instead of being shocked he was fascinated.

Franklin boasted that he could kill a bull with a sword, but his friends all poohed him. Despite the big money in the game, there had been only one flashy Americano in Mexican rings—Harper B. Lee, who retired to raise tame chickens near San Antonio.

The Brooklynite started taking lessons with Rodolfo Gaona, and 30 days later made his debut as a matador in the Mexico City arena. Most Latin fighters train from boyhood.

The Mexicans gave Sidney the tamale, or whatever corresponds to the razzberry down there, for his crudeness. But they stayed to applaud his gameness. My technique was pretty terrible, he grants.

Before long Franklin was a sensation. He has suffered two serious injuries, but has gone right back for more.

Blond bull-fighters are rare. Franklin knows four or five others, but they are from the north of Spain. He doesn't think he has any Spanish blood himself, but is certain of some Scotch, English, German and French.

When he was ready to sail for Spain recently, the movies signed him.

Eclipse Party

Lillian Tashman and Edmund Lowe, back again from Hollywood, gave an "eclipse party" in the tower of a big hotel on the afternoon when the sun and moon revived their passing show. In the morning it was cloudy, and Lowe got bothered. To make sure his guests wouldn't be disappointed he had an eclipse party on the bottoms of some ice tea glasses.

BULGARIANS RETREAT

On Sept. 16, 1918, allied troops continued their hot pursuit of the Bulgarian Second Army, which had been completely beaten in the offensive which started the day before.

A breach between the First and Second Bulgarian Armies was widened and the position of the Second Army was extremely critical.

The advance of the two days opened up the way for an allied drive into the heart of Bulgaria itself. Military observers reported that Bulgarian resistance was half-hearted and expressed the opinion that Bulgarian resistance was half-the war.

Bonus Issue Now Problem For Roosevelt

Hoover's Statement Necessitates Stand by Democratic Nominee

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
New York—The political implications of President Hoover's plea to the American legion, in opposition to immediate payment of the bonus, may change the whole strategy of the national campaign.

Up to now there have been only vague generalities on both sides. Mr. Hoover announces that he will veto any bill providing for the immediate payment of the bonus. In effect he is asking Governor Roosevelt, his opponent, to state what he will do about it.

This turns the political situation around considerably, for unless Mr. Roosevelt also opposes the bonus, the Republican managers will charge him with having repudiated his platform, which calls for a decrease of one billion dollars in the federal budget. Also, Mr. Roosevelt will forfeit the support of many business groups if he favors cash payment of the bonus.

There is no doubt Mr. Hoover has been losing votes in the eastern states because he does not favor the immediate repeal of the 18th amendment. Many of the conservative group of voters who have been putting prohibition above everything else now will be compelled to decide whether they would prefer the government to be saddled with a 24 billion dollar expenditure for the bonus, in addition to what is already being spent, or whether they would rather consider that prohibition is a matter not for the president to decide but for congress and then the several states to settle.

Up To Roosevelt
The Republican campaign plan has been drifting along with a defensive tack. From now on it will be a counter offensive. If Mr. Roosevelt does not answer the query as to what he will do about the bonus, he will have other questions put up to him based upon concrete pieces of legislation. For example, he will be asked whether, in view of his earlier criticism of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, he favors repeal of that act and the dissolution of that corporation. He will be challenged to say whether he favors repeal of the Home Loan act and other legislation that has been passed as a part of the government's program of economy recovery.

It begins to look as if the bonus question may be the opening wedge for Hoover to develop concrete issues to offset the general bombardment which his administration has been receiving at the hands of the Democratic nominee.

The Topeka speech of Governor Roosevelt in favoring the export debenture plan for agriculture will be the basis of much discussion in the west, though perhaps not in the east. Many of the groups which have been opposing the administration because of the stabilization operations of the federal farm board are equally opposed to government participation in the farming business through the debenture plan. It is unlikely, however, that this issue will get any farther east than the Alleghenies and it is doubtful whether the Republicans will attempt to debate the technical questions involved in the various agricultural schemes put forward in the last few years.

Columnists' Methods Revealed in Picture

The ways and means by which the gossip columnists of modern journalism get their information are amusingly exposed in Warner Bros. picture, "Blessed Event," which comes to the Appleton Theatre Saturday midnight. Lee Tracy, famed Broadway star and wit, plays the role of a chatter writer which closely parallels that of a famous Broadway columnist.

The Maine election has undoubtedly stirred up the Republican management leaders to the realization that their campaign must be more aggressive. It is not considered probable that Mr. Hoover's plea to the American legion at Portland will be successful, but the impression prevails here that he may succeed in focusing the attention of the country on the economic and financial perils of immediate cash payment of the bonus as he sees it rather than on the sentimental question involved in the eviction of the bonus army.

Sportsman Opposed to Shooting Grouse, Quail

BY BERT CLAFLIN
This fall is to be a prolific one for the hunters. At least, it will be prolific in open seasons, for in 18 days the booming of the guns will resound from the marshes to inaugurate the opening day of shooting waterfowl. It will also be legal to hunt prairie chicken, ring-necked pheasants and even quail, I believe, in certain sections. Then, when that is all over, and the uplands have once more been denuded of their feathered inhabitants, the deer season will open for ten days beginning November 20.

I enjoy hunting fully as much I think as any person in the state, and in days gone by I have bagged my full share of game from deer down to small upland game birds, yet I still believe it to be a mistake to allow shooting chicken, grouse and quail, this fall. As for the ring-necks, these birds thrive best in settled communities, that is, in farming sections, in the southern part of the state. It is comparatively easy, therefore, to keep tabs on the numbers of birds and to determine whether the supply warrants shooting them this fall. So far as our section of the state is concerned I claim they should not be on the open list until such a time as the birds get a start, which most certainly is not the case at the present time.

Recently, I wrote an article deprecating the opening of the season this fall on upland birds. This article was at once sent to Haskell Noyes, Chairman of the Conservation Commission by a party whose name is now known by me, and I received a letter from Mr. Noyes expressing his disappointment at my having asked the question: "Can it be that political reasons have influenced the situation this year?" This was by no means a statement to the effect that I believed the situation was influenced by politics. It was simply a question asking if such could be the case. I dislike very much to think that any political reasons can influence the welfare of our scarce upland game birds. Still, I have a perfect right to ask such a question, as has anyone else. And my article as written at that time stands uncorrected. Even with my strong liking for hunting I stand for principle, rather than personal pleasure, and I shall do all I can to further the welfare of our fish and game at all times.

I have traveled extensively throughout the northern counties during the past two years and from my own observation and from the opinions of many oldtime residents of the north country our ruffed grouse supply does not warrant an open season this fall. That, however, is just my personal opinion.

And, after all, why is it necessary to shoot these beautiful birds? Is it to help the unemployed? That is hardly consistent, for it costs plenty of money to run a car to their haunts, buy shells with which to shoot them and take care of other expenses. And surely, it cannot be to help the natives. They get the birds, anyhow, open or no open season.

Our waterfowl are migratory birds and therefore should be under far closer supervision by the federal government than subject to state laws. If we do not shoot them in Wisconsin we simply save them for the hunters of Illinois. However, these birds appear to have come back remarkably well from the dangerous shortage which existed last season.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

"The Red Castle Mystery," by H. C. Bailey, brings back to us one of the most pleasing of all fictional detectives—Josh Clunk, the shrewd criminal lawyer of London, who sucks lemon drops, sings hymns, disseminates an atmosphere of dreadful villainy and solves the most fiendish mysteries.

In this story Mr. Clunk goes to call on a client—a "fence" for the London underworld—and finds him murdered. That wouldn't be so strange, if the murdered chap didn't have a bottle of leeches and a book on ancient religions lying on his desk at the moment, and it all sets Mr. Clunk thinking.

The upshot is that he goes off to the vicinity of Luel Castle and thwarts the horrible designs of a gang of blackmailers on the life of the Earl of Luel, aged 10—not, however, without finding that Scotland Yard was convinced that he himself was at the bottom of everything.

This is a first-rate mystery yarn, and you'd better put it up at the head of the list. Mr. Bailey's most famous character, of course, is Reggie Fortune, but Mr. Clunk seems to me much more engaging. The way in which he constantly manages to stand with one foot on the side of law and order and the other er in the underworld is especially pleasing, and there are moments in which you find yourself wondering if maybe Mr. Clunk isn't the arch-villain of the piece, after all. Published by the Crime Club.

Lower Costs Are Promised By Roosevelt

Candidate Expects to Revise Executive Branch
Of Government

Roosevelt Special — (P) — Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, continued his trip through the west today after having told 110 leading Colorado Democrats in Denver last night: "When we take over the control of the legislative and executive branches of the national government next March we shall have the opportunity to revise the executive branch of the government along lines sounder, less extravagant and designed for the greater good of the greater number."

The New York governor in an extemporaneous speech at a dinner at the Brown Palace hotel in Denver, said the government of New York state during 12 of the last 14 years had been in the hands of the Democrats "because under the leadership of Alfred E. Smith in the first instance its government was for the welfare of the average citizen."

"The Democratic party," said Roosevelt, "has had in the past to appeal to voters with calber and not dollars. That's true this time. We are about to enter a new period of liberalism in the United States. People have been going back in these three years into fundamentals and are giving serious thought to the form of our government."

Need Intelligent Vote
"If our representative form of government is to live, it must be based on an intelligent vote. A continuation of representative government along the lines laid down by the original founders is the only thing that will keep it going. Otherwise we shall come to some other form of government."

"If we get the young liberals in this campaign we are going to keep them for a generation. The seeds have been sown. Go through and reap the crop—and, believe me, the price will be greater than that which is now being received for farm products."

The Democratic nominee said he felt "very confident of the result this fall."
"I have been running for public

Toonerville Folks

office, or in politics, for a long time," he added, "and I have got beyond the stage of going out and claiming everything in sight."

"I hold there is a great element of people who believe the time has come for a change. Of course that's purely a negative vote, but there is a very definite change in the thinking of men and women."

Governor Roosevelt made another, shorter extemporaneous talk in Denver last night. Soon after he arrived at the hotel, he appeared on a mezzanine balcony and addressed a crowd of several hundred that had gathered in the lobby below.

"Not Campaign Trip"
"This is not a campaign trip," he said. "I am making this trip to meet people in the different sections of the country and get acquainted with their problems to enable me when I go into the White House March 4 to deal with them on the basis of first hand knowledge."

He added that "when I go into the White House, I plan to follow the same policy that I have followed as governor of New York and make frequent visits to the country instead of waiting for the country to come to Washington."

Rooster Center of Controversy Among Experts of History

Baltimore — Whether there was a rooster at Fort McHenry during the bombardment by the British in 1814 has been a controversial matter for many years. Legend has it that a rooster, because of his happy crowing, made everybody feel a lot better during the battle.

After James E. Hancock, president of the Society of the War of 1812, said at the recent Defenders' day exercise, he believed the rooster story was a myth, John A. Hartman of Baltimore, brought forth the memoirs of his father, John R. Seidenstricker.

Seidenstricker wrote that his uncle, Henry Barnhart "was under Colonel Armistead at Fort McHenry during bombardment by the British fleet. He had a chicken cock there that he prized very highly, because of its beauty perhaps, and was careful to preserve it from a harm."

"But he could not protect it from a fragment of a bursting shell which struck the rooster on his foot, causing it, from alarm or pain, to fly and light upon the flagstaff, where he remained, crowing occasionally, until the conflict ceased."

Colonel Armistead offered to purchase the cock but he would not part with it and kept it until it died, when he placed it in a suitable box and in company with a

Voters of Outagamie County:

When John F. Lappen was appointed Sheriff three years ago, he made me his undersheriff. I have held that position since that time.

It is conceded that the Sheriff's Office under the administration of Mr. Lappen has been efficiently and honestly conducted. There were no favors shown and no deliberate law violations tolerated. I propose if elected to carry out the policies in force since Mr. Lappen has been Sheriff.

Citizens, the office of Sheriff is a very important one. You can judge the future by performances of the past. I offer the stainless record of this Sheriff's administration as a guarantee of what you will receive if I am elected.

Very sincerely yours,

STATE SENATOR

14th District

The principal issue in the present campaign is LESS TAXES. My experience leads me to believe that our State government can be operated at a lower cost than it is at present. I believe in the consolidation or elimination of commissions and departments whenever it is possible.

I believe that the cost of the government should be lowered, not by a few paltry thousands but by a decided slashing of expense that will really lower taxes. Any measure designed to lower government costs, no matter who introduces it, will receive my support, provided it is reasonable, just, and a benefit to the tax payers.

I feel that I am qualified to represent the farming, laboring and business interests of this district, and respectfully solicit your support at the primary, September 20th.

Civic Garden Project Shows Fine Results

Excellent Crops of Vegetables Raised in New London Area

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — The results of New London civic garden project, inaugurated last spring when many vacant lots were put under cultivation are now being realized. Never before has the city seen such productive plots or have gardeners had the time to follow their efforts through so consistently, city officials said.

One of the most interesting of these sections is the area of about 76 acres owned by Ben Rasmussen in the lower fifth ward which in the spring was subdivided into plots and apportioned to residents. Good-natured rivalry has created a distinct interest and out of a tame project, intended merely as a means of support, has come a variety of things besides vegetables.

Rasmussen attended to plowing and the small charge for that service was the only one to the tenants. Into the rich swamp marl went the seeds of many vegetables as the embryo farmers started up on their venture. Through broiling heat they beat off swarms of mosquitoes as they culled and hoed. Water must be hauled for drooping tomatoes and cabbage plants and this was supplied from a huge pit by a pump. Fights were waged on outcrops, beetles, bugs and worms and from the time that the first scarlet radishes were ready for use until now have come the returns of that labor.

What returns. The plots are like small French farms stretching away from a main path. Here is a long row of glossy winter pumpkins gleaming through green leaves. There are the pearl white onions, great fellows which will savor many a winter dish.

There are row upon row of cabbage, potatoes, cucumbers, tomatoes, here is the blue green of rutabaga foliage and there are squashes.

Still Pick Corn

Sweetcorn is still being picked and there are immense Danish baldheaded cabbages whose later destiny will be in perfect sauerkraut. Considerable fun has come out of the venture as was evidenced by bits of conversation of the gardeners.

"This is my estate," points out Joe Kische, a former government forest ranger, who turned his attention to gardening, "and these are my cabbages. They aren't worth a darn because I didn't use fertilizer and I don't care a darn because they are only bringing two bucks a ton anyhow, so I'm out only my work. Now on this neighboring estate is my friend Wallace Shirland, who spent lots for commercial fertilizer and he's got fine cabbages. You can only eat so many, so I'm pointing out my acres of potatoes. Now these potatoes were brought in to the world by the grace of heaven and Joe Kische, and I mean by the plenty of air, sun and Joe's elbow grease. Joe's potatoes run in long clean rows and he is praying for a break in the market price.

His friend, Wallace Shirland, who aside from raising everything that goes into a vegetarian's diet, is something of an expert in making plants do the unexpected. He does this by grafting and he also experiments with soil. If it needs more vitamins D he gives it D and

If something else is lacking in the soil he buzzes around with a test tube until he gets a perfect balance. As a result he has turned out a new member of the pepper family called the tomato pepper and the sweetness and thickness of it are like magic words from a seed catalogue. He has a good stand of Connecticut tobacco which he says is almost human in its habits. It catches insects too, says Shirland.

Rasmussen has one of the largest asparagus beds in this locality. Rows 320 feet long meet the eye and there are young beds of seed plants also. The finest type of marsh hay has been produced by Charles Miley and 80 tons of it have been stacked. Enough navy beans are waiting harvest to supply an army and these are the property of Courtney Waite. There is excellent self-blanching celery and a variety of new vegetables which will keep the gardeners and their families supplied for months.

Must Have Patience With Gifted Child, Parents Told

BY ANGELO PATRI

It is not easy to bear a gift. Its presence in the personality makes itself felt in a thousand painful ways. It drives the body and mind in its effort to find growth and expression. It beats its wings against the tender places of the spirit. It knows no rest and gives none until it is released and fulfilled.

The children who bear gifts are unfortunate in many ways, viewed from the standpoint of the practical, comfort-seeking people about them. "Why can't you be like your brothers and sisters? You don't hear them wishing for the moon. You don't see them neglecting their opportunities and spending their time foolishly. Get busy. Stop fussing. Do something sensible."

Do something sensible is exactly what the gifted child cannot do. Gifts are never sensible. They are enchantments. They work their will with the chosen ones. Given time they come into beauty, and a strength that is not of this world is born in them.

The family of the gifted child suffers unless the child is trained to understand his situation. Unless he is taught that he is carrying a double responsibility, unless he is helped to see himself clearly he is likely to make serious mistakes. The years between eighteen and thirty are hard for these young people. They have this urge to do and to be what other folks cannot understand. They feel experiences keenly. Their desires are stronger, their ambitions loftier, their failures worse than those of others. In that lies their growth. They must carry on in spite of their difficulties and we must help them.

One of the great forces for their stable growth is their duty to the family. It is a very real and brilliant child to say "I must live my own life. I must fulfill my destiny." He speaks truth, but not the whole, not the greatest part of it. He is part of a group. He has been dependent upon them for life, care, and growth through the years of his being. His life is wound about theirs. He has obligations to them which must be met, if he is to store up the energy and the power his gift will need for complete expression.

I don't believe that any form of artistic expression is helped by selfishness. Selfishness is ugly and art is beauty. How could a spirit steeped in selfishness create true beauty?

I know that there are families who would devour the children if they could. Children must defend themselves against all sorts of things, but they seldom have to face it. Usually families are too unselfish in their attitudes toward their gifted members. It is usually the other way around. The gifted child eats up the family.

It is against that I protest for the child's own sake. He cannot be the perfect spirit his gift demands for expression unless he has disciplined himself through service, sacrifice, and the observance of his idealism. Before one can give a perfect gift he must first have yielded up himself in its service. That may mean the homely duties of family responsibility. It often does. Gifts from the gods are always disguised.

You Can be Smart and Economical at Same Time

BY JOAN SAVOY

Paris is saying that it is smart to practice economy this year. But you must do it in a smart manner. Camouflaging old dresses, which you and all your friends have seen entirely too many times, is an interesting way to do it.

Buy a remnant or small piece of printed material, and make one of the new cape effects with a scarf collar. Stitch an extra cuff under the one already on your dress, and if you want to, use it in other places, such as in pleats.

If you are merely searching for a way of changing your dress, now and then, collars and cuffs work admirably. Pleats make your new trimming permanent. If the frock is to do double duty, forget all about them.

For a dress which is going to let its own material do all the decorative work, you can't choose the wrong pattern if you favor the chateau and mulberry flat crepe that is shown at the left.

If you are renovating an old frock, nothing will help you do the trick more than the flat crepe of chateau green, white and black, which appears in the upper right hand corner. The capelet collar with its huge bow, gay and youthful, the cuffs that are placed above

Your Mirror Is Factor In Make-up

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Mirrors and make-ups are inseparable in the world of beauty. The first determines in large measure the success of the second.

As you doubtless know, many of the screen stars have special bathrooms built for them. Some are lavish, some are simple, but all have one important feature in common, the placing of the dressing table mirror. It is usually placed where it will receive the best light, and where daylight will stream in, falling over the left shoulder of the star seated in front of the mirror and revealing her reflection without any shadows. Also, the mirrors are usually placed so that they will reflect the side so that if make-up is applied in the evening, or for evening wear, the make-up can be applied under these electric lights.

"True" Make-Up

By true make-up, I mean the most flattering make-up, applied in just the right amount, the right shade and for the right type of light. I was about to say "the right volume" but a bit scared that this would mean "too much" to some of you. No modern miss (or Mrs.) uses too much make-up these days. In fact, many of the screen stars have started the fad of little or no rouge at all. Thereby achieving a fresh, youthful, vivacious look. But I believe I've told you all that.

Very often, however, a faulty light or mirror is responsible for that "too much" effect on a face that wears "just a little" better, and on an individual that really strives for a natural, soft, flattering, toned-down make-up.

Bear in mind the fact that daylight intensifies make-up, whereas bright artificial lights absorb some of the brightness, and you can readily understand why it is so important to make-up in just the right light.

The other day I met an acquaintance, "Louise, you look healthy, almost too healthy," she ventured, too diplomatic to voice my suspicions. But she confirmed them by admitting that she had applied her make-up in a darkened room, under the electric light. In the strong sun her rouge fairly screamed. If you wish to achieve the warm, blended, even tone that is the nearest imitation of nature's own, be sure that no highlights and shadows play on your mirror.

And be sure that your mirror is a large one, or better still, a three-inch one mirror. Some women are content to judge not only their make-up but their entire appearance by a two inch reflection in a compact. These have to suffice for occasional touch-up when no larger mirror is available. But, before venturing forth from home or office, study yourself tip toe to top in a large mirror, and scrutinize your make-up from front view and especially profile. Study the back, too, to make sure there are no powder patches on the back of the neck.

Bridge Partners Must Cooperate in Bidding

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Good partnership bidding in Contract Bridge, whether the Approach-Forcing System or any other system, is characterized by an attempt made by both partners to give each other at least fifty per cent of the control in deciding upon the final contract. To do this the bidding on the hand must never be crowded, and each partner must seek to try to convey that information which seems most essential to his team-mate across the table.

There are times and situations where Jump bids and Forcing bids are absolutely necessary. There are also times when it is necessary to pre-empt even at the expense of shutting out one's partner. But good partnership seeks to preserve as many rounds of bidding as possible in which to exchange information. Thus the slogan seems to be and should be, "When in doubt, and in all borderline cases, do not force."

It is true that the simple Takeout in another suit, as opposed to the Jump Takeout, does not give partner any indication of great strength. On the other hand, there is and should be a fairly respectable urge to partner to continue to bid. He may wish to bid another suit, rebid his suit, support your suit, or bid notrump. At any rate,

"WILL Hal Pritchard be locked up in jail so he can't come after me any more?"

Sally's words trembled in the room. Hopeful, frightened, begging the group to tell her that she was safe. All of her old, proud defenses were down. She was asking almost humbly enough now.

Sue left the security of Jack's arms and crossed to the girl. "He won't annoy you again. You're safe—and you will be free."

Sally smiled. "I'm glad. But where will I go? My family won't let me come home. I'll go away—out of town—anywhere—as soon as I get an annulment. I'll get it soon. But until then . . . But there are enough other things to talk about until then. I'm sorry I've troubled you so much."

Sue was thinking of something Ruth Bradley had been offered a position assisting Joan Markey in her tea room. Maybe Joan, with her cloudy red hair and impish eyes, would be willing to let Sally come. After all she wanted companionship more than someone to do the actual work. She needed another girl to assist her as hostess. Sue resolved that she would call Joan that night.

The rest of the evening was a blur. The group moved on to the police station. Everyone was questioned. Everyone gave dozens of answers. Jack explained the whole situation over and over again.

Finally the ordeal ended. Sarah announced that she would get Ted and they would bring Sally out to Sue's. Jack and Sue were coming out in one of the police cars with two officers who were seeking some more detailed evidence.

While Jack accompanied them to the cabin to see Jimmy, Sue waited for Ted and Sarah and Sally. Her fear was strangely gone. The two men whom she feared had been removed. She had learned that the lawyer had been in a desperate predicament over another case which demanded that he obtain the information in Judge Thornton's safe at once. The penalty, if he didn't come across with it, was more dangerous than the one he faced in case his attempt to pin his own wrong-doing on Jack failed. He had known. He had taken the risk. And it hadn't worked. He was caught on two scores.

Sue arranged the amber cups and saucers on a gate-legged table near the fire. She attached the percolator and started to make coffee. She got out the waffle-iron. Everyone would be hungry. It had been hours and hours since lunch. No one had thought of dinner.

"I'll call Joan and ask about Sally while I'm waiting for Jack," she decided.

She found the number in the telephone directory, dialed it, and heard the girl's gay, lilting voice at the other end of the line.

"Sue, oh, I'm so glad you called," she said. "I was lonesome."

"If it weren't so far I'd ask you to come out and sample my waffles," Sue answered. "Would you?"

"Would I? I'd love it. I'm being blue tonight—and I don't often get that way. I'll be there right away."

As Sue turned away from the telephone, she heard the doorbell ringing.

Your Birthday

"VIRGO"

If September 17th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The stars foretell for September 17th, a day of countless worries and troubles, nothing very serious, but of the pin-pricking variety, molehills, not mountains. The mind will not be clear enough to tackle big problems; they should, therefore, be left to some more convenient season. The feeling of dissatisfaction will be in evidence all day and you will feel as though you "got out of bed the wrong side."

A child born on this September 17th, is destined, by Fate, to acquire responsibilities at an early age, and will be equipped by nature

Old Gardener

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS

It is pleasant to find that garden makers are becoming increasingly familiar with the serums, which are many in number and varied in their uses. Most of them are evergreen, which is a distinct advantage in the rock garden, but many of them change their color in winter to a surprising degree. This adds to their interest. Sedum murela has a nice green color in summer, but when winter comes turns a warm red and then with the approach of spring becomes much darker. Sedum lydium is a bright green, mosslike plant in summer, but becomes red in the winter. Some of sedums have delightful flowers, which, combined with their attractive foliage, makes them among the best plants to be recommended to amateur garden makers who have succumbed to the prevailing rock garden fever.

First Year Sets Pattern Of Whole Married Life

BY DOROTHY DIX

The other day a group of men and women were discussing the fact the first year of marriage is the crucial one because in the period the husband and wife establish their relationship toward each other and settle the whole complexion of their domestic life. Very seldom do they ever alter their attitude toward each other. Not often are they able to correct a mistake that they make then. Almost never are they able to retrieve a bad getaway. As they start out, they go on, even to their golden wedding day.

"If I had to live my married life over again," said the third man, "I would try to look at life more from my wife's point of view than I did. I would try to realize that when a man marries a girl he isn't doing her so an all-fired favor as he thinks he is and that just being married to him isn't all the whoopee that a woman wants in life. I would remember that when a girl marries she gives up the attentions of many men for one man. I would remember that she is used to being flattered and made love to, and I would remember that housework is the dull and most monotonous work in the world."

"So I would do something to keep my wife entertained and amused and thinking matrimony was worth while. And I'd hand her out a superbrand of love-making, and I would do my share toward keeping matrimony from slumping. It is because marriage is a two-handed game and we leave women to play it alone that they take so little interest in it."

"If we could all go back and begin again we could avoid so many mistakes in marriage, and that isn't maybe," said the first man.

FROM AN UNHAPPY STEPMOTHER

The question in this letter is not really in my province but the writer is so unhappy I haven't the heart to leave her letter out of the column.

My dear Mrs. Post: I made the mistake of marrying a man who had four divorces and seven children. Four of them live with him and three come to visit. I married three years ago and we live on a farm. My husband is a hard man and I have to work hard from before daylight, raising a garden and housework. My stepdaughters—17 and 15—get money from their father to buy new dresses and candy, and to go to the movies. They are very rude to me and teach their brothers to be rude and to keep me cleaning up after them, which my husband makes me do. My husband has given me less than fifteen dollars for myself since we married. He says I have no time to waste and I don't need anything. I did all the work, but now a baby is coming and I am very sick. If I rest a little my husband shouts, "If you don't work you can get out of here." I would like to get out, but I have nowhere to go. My husband has to pay alimony to his other wives. Will you tell me how I can go away and find peace and get alimony for my baby?

I answer: I am more than sorry about your situation—but I really cannot understand how you ever dared to marry a man after four divorces! At present you can't very well go out into the world and support yourself, and a man (in these times) paying alimony to four wives, can scarcely be made to pay enough to live on, to a fifth.

I don't know whether there is a Marital Court in your nearest city, or a branch of the Legal Aid Society to whom you can appeal, but you will have to show evidence of cruelty on your husband's part—which, since he seems kind to his children, may be hard to do. A fact that you should perhaps remember before making his child dependent upon what you alone can provide is that his father is the only person in the world who shares your interest in its welfare.

(Copyright, 1932.)

"I married the dearest girl in the world, but alas and alack, I committed bigamy, or whatever it is because unwittingly I espoused at the same time all of her near relatives, and they have not only been under foot all the time but I have had to work to support them ever since."

"Mother is always having an operation, or father is in need of a set of new teeth, or little Johnny has to have his adenoids out or sister Sue needs a new dress, or brother Sam has got into a scrape and has to be paid out, or one of the twins must have her voice developed and the other one wants to study something else, or Eliza just needs $50 to go on a wonderful trip, or if Bob had a couple of hundred he could go into some sort of business. So wife weeps on my shoulders until she washes the money out of my pocket, or else I find myself eating mutton neck stew and she has nothing to wear when we are invited out, and the explanation is that she has sent all of the house-keeping money and her allowance to her people, who seem to think that a son-in-law is something that is sent by a beneficent Providence to supply their wants."

"I know my wife loves me, but she hasn't the slightest hesitation in offering me up as a living sacrifice to her family. I believe she respects me, but my opinion has no weight with her in comparison to her mother's. Ever since we have been married, mother has back-seat chauffeured our household and I have had to listen to "Mother say we should do this or that," or "Mother says we shouldn't do this or that." And that settled the argument so far as wife was concerned."

"If I had to live my married life over again," said the second man, "I'd take a bridal tour to the end of the earth and never come back. I'd settle at the farthest-known point from my wife's family and pray that none of them would ever get enough money to come and visit us, for the bane of my whole married life has been my in-laws."

GOOD LASTE TODAY
By Emily Post

FROM AN UNHAPPY STEPMOTHER

The question in this letter is not really in my province but the writer is so unhappy I haven't the heart to leave her letter out of the column.

My dear Mrs. Post: I made the mistake of marrying a man who had four divorces and seven children. Four of them live with him and three come to visit. I married three years ago and we live on a farm. My husband is a hard man and I have to work hard from before daylight, raising a garden and housework. My stepdaughters—17 and 15—get money from their father to buy new dresses and candy, and to go to the movies. They are very rude to me and teach their brothers to be rude and to keep me cleaning up after them, which my husband makes me do. My husband has given me less than fifteen dollars for myself since we married. He says I have no time to waste and I don't need anything. I did all the work, but now a baby is coming and I am very sick. If I rest a little my husband shouts, "If you don't work you can get out of here." I would like to get out, but I have nowhere to go. My husband has to pay alimony to his other wives. Will you tell me how I can go away and find peace and get alimony for my baby?

I answer: I am more than sorry about your situation—but I really cannot understand how you ever dared to marry a man after four divorces! At present you can't very well go out into the world and support yourself, and a man (in these times) paying alimony to four wives, can scarcely be made to pay enough to live on, to a fifth.

I don't know whether there is a Marital Court in your nearest city, or a branch of the Legal Aid Society to whom you can appeal, but you will have to show evidence of cruelty on your husband's part—which, since he seems kind to his children, may be hard to do. A fact that you should perhaps remember before making his child dependent upon what you alone can provide is that his father is the only person in the world who shares your interest in its welfare.

Flapper Fanny Says

"I married the dearest girl in the world, but alas and alack, I committed bigamy, or whatever it is because unwittingly I espoused at the same time all of her near relatives, and they have not only been under foot all the time but I have had to work to support them ever since."

"Mother is always having an operation, or father is in need of a set of new teeth, or little Johnny has to have his adenoids out or sister Sue needs a new dress, or brother Sam has got into a scrape and has to be paid out, or one of the twins must have her voice developed and the other one wants to study something else, or Eliza just needs $50 to go on a wonderful trip, or if Bob had a couple of hundred he could go into some sort of business. So wife weeps on my shoulders until she washes the money out of my pocket, or else I find myself eating mutton neck stew and she has nothing to wear when we are invited out, and the explanation is that she has sent all of the house-keeping money and her allowance to her people, who seem to think that a son-in-law is something that is sent by a beneficent Providence to supply their wants."

"I know my wife loves me, but she hasn't the slightest hesitation in offering me up as a living sacrifice to her family. I believe she respects me, but my opinion has no weight with her in comparison to her mother's. Ever since we have been married, mother has back-seat chauffeured our household and I have had to listen to "Mother say we should do this or that," or "Mother says we shouldn't do this or that." And that settled the argument so far as wife was concerned."

"If I had to live my married life over again," said the second man, "I'd take a bridal tour to the end of the earth and never come back. I'd settle at the farthest-known point from my wife's family and pray that none of them would ever get enough money to come and visit us, for the bane of my whole married life has been my in-laws."

New Activity Is Apparent in National Race

Political Generals in Determined Effort to Win Public Opinion

BY BYRON PRICE
Washington—A new urge of activity, pressing a whirling fire after weeks of half-motion, has been put into the presidential campaign by the Maine election, the Roosevelt western swing, and renewed discussion of the bonus.

So far as the political generals themselves are concerned, it appears certain that the efforts to extend public opinion from now on will be on a scale as great as the country has seen in any recent campaign.

For the expected redoubling of party endeavor on both sides the Maine election returns are largely responsible. Rejoicing Democrats, thinking that in their Maine victory they sense a distinct advantage everywhere, are encouraged to press every opportunity to the utmost. Surprised Republicans have been called upon by President Hoover himself to rally for a "hard fight."

No one can guess at this stage whether sparks from the roaring furnaces of organized party activity will start any conflagrations among the voters themselves.

Word has come to party leaders from many sections that a large body of the people are silent and apathetic. In general, neither campaign contributions nor attendance at political meetings shows an average high enough to indicate intense popular interest. Yet in Maine the vote was very heavy which may mean that the public is thinking and meaning to act, even if it is not talking.

For the moment, most of the outward activity is on the part of the Democrats. Governor Roosevelt, speeding toward the west coast, is asking for the support of the voters of both parties, as he turns from the old subjects of the general depression and prohibition to speak about farm relief, power and the railroads. It is the aim of the Democrats to consolidate now if possible, enough western strength to win regardless of what the east may do.

The preparations of the Republicans for an intense October drive in both east and west will bring into action every available party wheel. President Hoover's telegram to chairman Sanders after the Maine election, asking for renewed effort everywhere, has been followed by a long string of political conferences at the White House. The president's own speaking program, calling heretofore for three major speeches, may be somewhat—but not greatly—expanded.

Whatever the political effect, publication of the bonus eviction report on the eve of the American legion convention at Portland, stirred up a commotion which did not lack for public attention even in a week of commotions.

After giving Secretary Hurley both boos and cheers, the legion endorsed the bonus, left aside a resolution to censure the president for evicting the bonus marchers from Washington, but adopted one censuring the war department for distributing literature on the subject in the convention.

Much more probably will be heard of this before the campaign ends. President Hoover's opposition to the bonus is well known, and was reiterated during the Portland convention while Governor Roosevelt came under further urging, from several sources, to declare himself. In one way or another the issue is sure to be kept alive, although the politicians do not agree how many votes will be influenced by it in the end.

Hoover Urges Needed Credit For Stock Men

Asks Organized Banking Groups to Help Meet Requirements

Washington—(P)—Organized banking groups in six federal reserve districts had before them today a request from President Hoover for activity in filling credit needs of livestock owners and shippers.

Through the central executive committee of the twelve recently organized banking and industrial committees, the president urged financial aid for livestock areas during the feeder season and pending first operations of the reconstruction corporation's agricultural credit institutions.

His telegram to this committee yesterday immediately was transmitted by its executive secretary, Everett Case, to chairmen of the banking groups in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. It read: "As you are aware the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is earnestly engaged in the erection of a series of credit institutions for the purpose of serving livestock and feeder loans and for other agricultural purposes.

Must Meet Demands

"The corporation has found many difficulties in securing personnel and in overcoming legal questions which arise under the act, and although they are working unremittingly for the earliest possible erection of these institutions, it does not appear that they will all be functioning for two or three weeks. In the meantime, the season for shipment of livestock for feeder purposes, etc., is upon us.

"I am wondering if it would be possible for you to interest the federal reserve banking and industrial committees in the areas of the country where this credit is required, that they should secure maximum activity of all the banks to take care of these demands, at least pending completion of the Reconstruction corporation's organizations. I know of nothing that would more quickly promote agricultural interests than a regular flow of livestock into feed lots."

Case also advised the chairmen that Wilson McCarthy, director in the Reconstruction corporation, said the credit institutions upon completion would be prepared "to take over sound loans from the banks."

Private Industry May Rule Waterways Body

Washington—(P)—Major General T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways corporation, Thursday told the house committee investigating government competition with private business that the corporation hoped eventually to turn the inland waterways business over to private industry.

Questioned by Representative Shannon (D., Mo.) chairman of the committee and Representative Rich (R., Pa.), Ashburn said he would fix no specific time for dissolution of the government corporation. He said the life of the corporation depended on the attitude of congress.

Ashburn said the net profit of the corporation for the last eight years was $8,787. He gave this figure to dispute a statement by Representative Rich that the corporation had lost $19,000,000 since 1924.

Bloomington, Pa. — Ezra Allen Polk, 18, died rescuing his father's cows when the barn caught fire. He saved all the livestock, then collapsed and died of burns.

Farmers Still Self-Sufficient That May Prove Best Argument to Raise Station, Schafer Writes

Madison — (AP) — The self-sufficiency of the American farmer which permits him to live with little calculable income may prove to be the best form of argument with which to raise his station in the economic world, in the opinion of Dr. Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the state historical society.

In an article to appear in the October issues of agricultural history, a quarterly publication of the National Agricultural Historical society, Dr. Schafer points out that there are still survivals of the agrarian system which saw the farm as an almost independent economic unit. Such survivals afford glimpses of the second and impregnable line of defense to which a harried rural army can always retire," he wrote. "Suppose, for a moment, that the farmers of the country agree to remain sheltered behind that defense, two or three months; with wise leadership and a steady morale they could settle the farm problem on a durable basis, and that without picketing the roads or using force in any way.

"Should they, for an initial move, decide that those merchants who pay them in goods or cash, 40 cents per dozen for eggs, would get their trade, the great majority could thereby obtain indispensable supplies while working out their program with reference to farm products generally; to the question of mortgage indebtedness, and the debtenture or some other plan of dealing with exportable surpluses, the president-controlled adjustment of the tariff on such products as may be affected by importations from abroad.

"English kings, during the middle ages, lived on their own," Dr. Schafer wrote. "They moved, with their households, officials, and retainers from one to another of the king's estates, consuming what had been produced: on each in turn. They could live because they had grain, and pork, and game. By showing a willingness to 'live on their own' the farmers, armed with the ballot and holding the key to the nation's commissary department, can make themselves the actual 'kings of America.'"

Good looks aren't always luck

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging. Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs — so often habit-forming. Two tablespoons daily — in serious cases, with every meal — will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor. Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red and green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Signs Are Important---

When you are motoring through the country, you pay careful attention to the signs along the road. To overlook one may cause you to go miles out of your way.

Signs are just as important in other matters. Take the buying of meat for example. The many regular customers who have been trading at Voecks Bros. for many years are a sign that this is a satisfying and dependable place to buy meats. You will truly appreciate the true worth of this sign after you have traded at Voecks Bros. for a short time.

Voecks Bros. "selected" Meats, Poultry, and Sausages — and the market in which they are sold — are of one quality — the very highest and finest.

This weekend we have some fancy Ducks, spring and yearling Chickens, Broilers or Roasters. A delicious cut of Beef or Lamb will make an excellent Sunday Dinner.

SYNOPSIS: Just after marrying Jervis Weare and accepting $10,000 for it, Nan Forsythe sees the photograph of a man she has hated and feared for ten years in Jervis' room. She believes the man tried to murder Jervis. Nan's marriage tears her heart, for she loves Jervis dearly yet knows he considers her only a means of saving the fortune left him by his grandfather from Rosamund Carew, his former fiancée.

Chapter
A LIFE ENDANGERED
CYNTHIA was married on August 20 and on the 22nd she sailed with Frank Welsh for Australia. He was to be there for six months and then return to take up the junior partnership which Cynthia's ten thousand dollars had made possible.
Nan went to the boat to see them off. She was dutifully kissed by Frank, and rather perfunctorily by Cynthia. She walked back to a room strewn with all the odds and ends which had not been worth taking to Australia, with the feeling that had come to a dead end. She was married, and Cynthia was married. She had lost her job. Cynthia didn't want her any more. Jervis Weare certainly didn't want her.
She tidied the room, and then sat down to face the future. She had been married six days, but it was the first time she had really had time to think. To get Cynthia married, to buy Cynthia's outfit, and to get her off by the same boat as Frank, had taken every bit of her thought and time and energy. It was characteristic of Cynthia that she had not even asked what Nan was going to do. For the moment her consciousness was so saturated with Frank as to be unable to take in anything else. She had gone as completely, if not as irrevocably, into another world as if she had died.
Some time she would come back. Some day she would probably want Nan again. But Nan was not able to derive a great deal of comfort from this thought. She had mothered Cynthia ever since Cynthia was born and she, a baby of three, had cuddled the new baby in her small strong arms.
When she had sat on the edge of the bed for about half an hour, she got up, put on her hat, and went out. It had become clear to her that she must have a job - and jobs do not just drop into your lap; you have to go out and wrestle for them.
When she had been to three agencies, she felt better. None of the agencies had anything to offer her, but one of them had asked her whether she would care to make a voyage to South America in charge of children. She toyed with the idea over a cup of tea. It was not without its charm. Very, very badly she felt the need of someone to look after. What she really wanted to do was to look after Jervis Weare. She wondered if he had left town. She wondered who darned his socks. She wondered if he was very much in love with Rosamund Carew. She wondered where the tall, fair Rosamund was now, in town, or in the country? It would be quite easy to find out. She knew Rosamund's address well enough, since she had often taken letters to her for Mr. Fage.
She paid her bill at the tea-room and walked slowly along. It would be quite easy for her to walk down East Sixty-fifth street. It was, of course very improbable that she would learn anything by doing so. It was irrational to expect to learn anything. It was irrational to want to see Rosamund.
She walked through Sixty-fifth street. The door of No. 29 was shut, and the blinds were down. When Nan had walked to the end of the block, she turned back. This made it necessary for her to pass No. 29 again. She stood still and looked at the house. Something came to her from it - she didn't know what it was, but she didn't like it.
As this thought went through her mind, she saw a taxi coming up the street towards her. The taxi stopped in front of No. 29. Without conscious plan, she whisked around behind the taxi and was in time to see Rosamund Carew emerge and mount the steps which led to No. 29. Nan received an impression of height, grace and brilliance. Rosamund went up the steps, and a man got out of the car and followed her. Nan leaned sideways against the taxi. She tried to step back, and the pavement lifted under her foot. The man was Robert Leonard. After ten years, she was just as sure of that as she was that when she had seen him last he had just struck down Jervis Weare and left him to drown.

Nan stood behind the car, waiting for her strength to return. In an instant, Robert Leonard ran down the steps. Nan saw him for a moment in profile, and then the car was between them. He wore a light felt hat and a grey suit. His face was florid and tanned. He had a small fair clipped moustache and a straight line of light eyebrow. The eyelids beneath it had a crumpled look.
Nan pressed close up against the car. She did not want Robert Leonard to see her. He must be a cousin of Miss Carew's - she remembered that Rosamund was Rosamund Veronica Leonard - there was nothing odd that he should be with her. And then Robert Leonard's voice: "It's the four-fifteen all right. You'll have to hurry. Let him come out of the ferry house and get well away. He's sure to talk - he has a craze for exercise."
"And suppose he takes a taxi - what then?" This was the driver, in a hoarse, throaty voice.
"You must do the best you can," said Leonard impatiently.
He turned away. The driver's voice followed him.
"Look here, cap'n, I'm not so keen on this job as I was."
Leonard turned round again. "Take it or leave it!" he said.
"Twenty-five hundred dollars, twenty-five hundred dollars," said the hoarse, complaining voice.
"Exactly."
"And jail's jail."
"Well," said Leonard carelessly, "you needn't touch it if you don't want to."
"Oh, I'll do it," said the driver. "I'm a man of my word, I am."
Nan heard the whirr of the starter. Her knees were shaking. The taxi began to move. It slipped away, leaving her shelterless.
Robert Leonard, with his back to her, was mounting the step of No. 29.

New Trap for Animals

Looks Before it Springs

Washington - (AP) - A trap that can be set to catch only animals of a certain weight, and is harmless to smaller animals or birds has been invented by Albert M. Day of the department of agriculture.
An adjustable spring makes it possible to set an ordinary steel trap to spring only when wolves, bobcats, coyotes and other predatory animals of similar weight step into it.
The new attachment is designed to prevent loss of time and effort when traps set in carefully-chosen spots for predatory animals are sprung by rabbits, porcupines, foxes and other comparatively small and inoffensive creatures. These unwanted victims often warn the larger animals away and make the trap site worthless for a long time.

WATER? PHOOEY!

Leon, bearing 70, was born in Ghent, Belgium, and was raised on 20 different kinds of beer there. He moved to the United States 35 years ago, and landed in Pittsburgh, Texas, on a Sunday. Saloons were closed then, and Leon finally quenched his thirst by drinking water. He drinks water more or less moderately now. He says he was never drunk in his life.

Squad of 28 Reports for First Lawrence Grid Practice

Coach Clapp Pleased With Initial Drill

Husky Aggregation Will be Augmented for More Men Today

THE 1932 football season for Lawrence college got underway yesterday at George A. Whiting field in almost the same manner that Viking grid seasons have started in the last four or five years. There were less than 20 cinders on hand but there was one thing about that 28 that is not characteristic of other seasons—there was quality, if not quantity.

Coach Percy Clapp, one leg bandaged from an infection and feeling more or less the worse from wear around the mid section because of a recent illness and Bill Schroeder, greeted the Vikings. Llewellyn Lund, a performer on last season's Vike squad also was on hand to help Clapp in any capacity.

There was no time lost in preliminaries. Many of the boys had been outfitted last spring, had put their duds away until today and were all set to go. A few others got new shoes, pants sox or sweaters or pads.

The first drill was in the morning and included preliminaries and a few comments from the Vike mentor. The hardest drill probably was the afternoon session when the boys were alone, their were several aches and pains accompanying them.

Coach Clapp would welcome about an inch of rainfall some night this week, however. The practice gridiron is about the hardest thing going next to a concrete block and a Mother Nature rain storm through with a few buckets full of water or the college gets out a couple lines of fire hose there are going to be blistered feet and a lot more aches.

It was mentioned Coach Clapp wants the rainfall at night. He doesn't want any during the day for he has only a week from tomorrow to prepare his proteges for their opening skirmish—with Marquette University at Milwaukee. A day lost by rain might mean an additional touchdown scored against the Vikes by the Hilltoppers.

Before yesterday's workouts were over the Vikings may have been rightly be called Ramblers this year for they play five games on the road—were divided into two squads and sent through signal drills. The purpose was to see how well they had learned their spring and summer lessons and needless to say the coaches fairly well pleased.

Some of the boys were a bit so hot, but others had done themselves proud. Plans are to hold drills once daily in the afternoon, until school starts. The workouts will begin early and run until probably 5 o'clock. Coach Clapp believes one hard session in the afternoon beats a couple indifferent sessions in the morning and afternoon.

The boys who reported yesterday were Burt Ashman, Elgin, J. L. Robert Baldwin, Green Bay, Clifford Collins, Milwaukee, Merlin Fiend, Jefferson, Bernard Fahres, Sheboygan, Gordon Faber, Wabik, Minn., Robert Grogan, Kaukauna, Glenn Hesser, Sheboygan, Milton Kuether, Sheboygan, Theodore Kramer, Milwaukee.

Gilbert Lemke, Milwaukee, Henry Nagel, West Bend, Edward Pfefferle, Appleton, Edward Roebber, Antigo, Ward Roebush, Port Edwards, Herbert Schmidt, Appleton, Robert Schmidt, Milwaukee, Gordon Siis, Appleton, James Vadder, Marshfield, George Walter, Green Bay, Clyde West, Perry, La. Morris Warzink, Marshfield, Chestley Gebhardt, Milladore, Myles McMillan, Glanville, Mich., Robert Roemer, Appleton, and Lawrence Oosterhaus, Appleton.

The squad was expected to be augmented by several other chaps on Friday and Saturday and Monday another delegation is expected to join. The fact that a week from tomorrow brings the first game is expected to work hardships with the late comers, however, and few may see action against the Hilltoppers.

THE STORY OF BABE RUTH, RECORD WRECKER

This is the fifth of ten stories relating the prodigious world's series feats of the one and only Babe Ruth. Nearing the end of his career, the Babe this year will make his tenth and perhaps last appearance in the classic.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—As the fall years give way to the lean and success becomes a tonic that finally drugs, so did Babe Ruth, after his mighty surge of 1921, tumble from home run heights and become the "busted phenomenon" of the Yankee world's series debacle of 1922.

It was no fault of Ruth's that the Yankees, after winning the American league pennant with the first of Miller Huggins' power-plus outfits

Cuyler's Homer Gives Cubs Win Over N. Y. Giants

Bruins Forced to Go 11 Frames to Get Nod; Warneke Cops No. 22

BY GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO (AP)—Cuyler sat on the bench while the Pittsburgh Pirates absorbed four successive beatings from the New York Yankees in 1927, but it's a safe bet the fleet outfielder will see plenty of service in the world's series this year, assuming the Chicago Cubs win the National league pennant.

As the Cubs drive toward the flag, Cuyler's sensational fielding and timely hitting have been the determining factor in many a game. Particularly has he been "poisonous" to the New York Giants. Almost singlehanded he beat them in two games of a recent series at Chicago and yesterday he was the hero of the Cubs' thrilling, 11-inning, 8 to 7 victory over the same club at the Polo grounds.

The Giants had rallied to tie the score at 5-5 in the ninth only to see the Cubs blast two runs across in the tenth, but the Giants were far from beaten. The first three men to face Bob Smith in the last half of the tenth singled and Lonnie Warneke was called in to halt the rally.

He did, but not until Hughie Critz had driven in the tying run with a double on which Joe Moore, carrying the winning run on his shoulders, was cut down at the plate by Cuyler's bullet-like throw. Having saved the game Kiki proceeded to win it in the next inning with a home run on Sam Gibson, third Giant pitcher of the day.

Pittsburgh recovered from a brief slump to trim the Boston Braves, 3 to 2, but failed to gain an inch. They still were 5½ games behind the Cubs today, with the schedule growing short. They would have to win all their remaining 12 games while the Cubs were losing six out of 10 to take the pennant.

St. Louis turned up with another brilliant pitching prospect in Ray Starn, young right-hander from Rochester, who held Brooklyn to two widely spaced singles and won handily, 3 to 0. The Phillies downed Cincinnati, 7 to 4, to make a sweep of the three-game series.

Sox Beat Yankees

The Yankees suffered their first defeat since clinching the American league flag when the Chicago White Sox beat them, 8 to 5. Lefty Gomez was the victim, breaking a seven-inning streak for the Castilian. Walter Stewart of the St. Louis Browns came out best in a tight mound duel with George Earnshaw of the Athletics, 3 to 2.

Cleveland pounded two Boston pitchers for 12 hits, including home runs by Kamm and Cissell, to win their 13th game of the year from the Red Sox, 7 to 2. The Detroit Tigers nosed out Washington, 8 to 7, in 10 innings. Tommy Bridges didn't allow the Senators a hit in the last four frames.

WINS IN RELIEF ROLE

Chicago (AP)—Lonnie Warneke finally has won a game as a relief pitcher.

Although the sensation of the National league this season along the full nine-inning route, the Cub pitcher never had won in a relief role until yesterday when he stepped in to relieve Bob Smith in the tenth against the Giants and finally won the game on Cuyler's home run in the next inning.

It was his twenty-second victory of the year.

In 1921, went down before John McCraw's Giants five games to three in the world's series.

Ruth topped his 59 home run spurge with a gallant series attack, popping the Giants pitching in the last of the best-five-out-of-nine series for five hits in 18 times at bat and an average of .313. The Yanks took the first two games, then dwindled down to lose five of the next six.

In Mild Debut

It was Ruth's introduction to New York world's series play, the first of a string of seven that reaches a new climax in the coming struggle. In a small way he was a failure. Manhattan's crowds expected something more spectacular. But the ordinariness of the Ruth of the 1921 series was magnificence itself compared to the helpless Babe of 1922.

The Bambino had fallen into evil ways through the season of 1922. Riding the high wave of popularity and fame, the Babe took time out along the way to sample the fruits of his conquests.

Found Much Fun

He took his fun where he found it, and with more money in his hands than he ever thought existed fun wasn't hard to find. His home run hitting fell off to 35 for the season as Rogers Hornsby took away his leadership with 42. Ruth's hitting fell off to .313 from the tremendous .378 of 1921.

Huggins drove his rambling playboys through to the world's series, and there they fell apart. First Earl Neph, then Jess Barnes, Jack Scott, Hughie McCulligan, then Neph again tamed the Yanks. The Yanks could only tie one game for Bob Shawkey while losing four.

First Obituary

Ruth hit exactly 118, driving in one run with two small hits. He was back in shape for the series but over-anxious. He simply couldn't get started. The fans rode him viciously.

After the series one of the guides wrote the Babe's obituary thusly: "There are no excuses for the lamentably weak hitting of Babe Ruth, now an exploded phenomenon. He... was shown up in a way that amazed the fans... McGraw kept Ruth's number. His boxman fooled him with change of pace. They kept the balls low and were not afraid to pitch to him.

"Ruth went to the plate 21 times. He was passed unintentionally twice, nicked by a pitched ball once, made a single, two bager and a sacrifice, was retired 7 times on in-field grounders, forced one man at second, fouled out twice, flied out twice and fanned three times.

That was the first of Ruth's obituaries.

The next year he hit .393 for the season, including 41 homers.

Valley Coaches Alter Grid Rules

Make Several Changes to Be in Vogue During Current Season

Interpretation of the 1932 football rules for Valley conference teams occupied coaches and athletic officials of league schools when they gathered here yesterday for their fall meeting.

They decided that in the case of a punt blocked behind the goal line neither team can advance with the ball. The ball will be dead at the point of recovery. Under former rules only the receiving team could advance with the ball.

The "dead ball" feature of regular football rules was changed by the valley conference to eliminate a "dead ball" if a man falls while not in the grasp of a tackler. It removes the objectionable feature of the rule which would make a ball dead if a man, an open field ahead of him, slipped and his knee touched the ground.

The other rule change permits players on a kicking side to use hands in order to ward off blockers. It was said under present rules a man going down under a punt cannot use his hands in any way until after the other side touches the ball. It was considered too much handicap to the kicking side.

A committee was named to select basketball officials for this winter; it was announced there would be no cross country; and that hockey schedules will be taken care of by the few schools that have teams.

Announcements were made that high schools are exempt from the amusement tax on football tickets.

Schools also decided not to pay expenses for scouting but otherwise will permit the practice.

It was decided to hold a basketball rule meeting on Nov. 17 at Appleton. The next regular meeting of the conference will be held at Oshkosh, Thursday, Jan. 12.

Yank Pitching Ace Says He's Scared About Series

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe McCarthy, marauding Yankees were whooping it up with a somewhat one-sided world series discussion from their dug-out at Comiskey park when a lithe, somber looking mate edged out of the noisy crowd.

It was one of their strongest talking points, "Lefty" Gomez, ace southpaw of the American league champions. A glance showed that he was glad to get away.

"Not much use of me saying anything about this world series," he mumbled. "The only post baseball series I've ever seen or played in was back in 1928 in the Utah-Idaho league. And then, I was just a relief pitcher."

"Nope, he doesn't know anything about a world series but the world series will know a lot about him before he's retired that soup bone," chimed in the old "war horse" of the Yankee coaching staff, Cy Perkins. "What a lot of pitching those Cubs are going to see!"

Admits He's Excited

Lefty doesn't throw soft ones to the opposition batsmen. Neither does he toss soft soap in his reluctant discussion of what's going to happen when he tangles with the Cubs. He frankly admits that he's

Chicago Cardinals Have Won First Two Starts

GREEN BAY—A distinct trace of red along the professional football horizon, deepened by victories over the Grand Rapids Maroons and the Aurora Yellow-Jackets, is being cast by the Chicago Cardinals, who next Sunday afternoon will engage the Green Bay Packers in the opening game of the National Professional league season.

Recently the Cardinals romped to a pushover victory, 33 to 0 against Aurora and Saturday they will climb aboard a train, headed for Green Bay and the Packers. The two consecutive victories thus far annexed by the Cards has filled Jack Chevigny's team with optimism, and as a result they plan to increase their string over the Packers, started last season at Chicago, to two straight.

Some Great Talent

There will be no Ernie Nevers pounding through the Cardinal backfield formations, but there will be a beautifully conditioned team, coached in the Rockne system, which has a spirit eclipsing the collegiate and some of the best talent today in the National league.

Jack Chevigny made an immediate hit with his squad by starting his coaching assignment in a businesslike manner. The Notre Dame veteran informed the Cardinals that he and he alone holds the final word as regards the handling of the team.

"The first man who squawks to anybody but me," stated Chevigny, "will squawk himself right off the club."

Holmer Great Back

Walter Holmer, one time Northwestern university star in the pre-Bruder era, in all probability will be called upon to bear the brunt of the work behind the red line. Holmer is a great punter has few equals at tossing passes, and is a workhorse similar to the Nevers type when it comes to lugging the ball.

The Cardinals come to Green Bay with two victories in exhibition games behind them, plus three weeks of twice-a-day workouts with the Chicago Sun. They are in excellent physical condition for their early stage of the season, and already have been well grounded in the Notre Dame style of play.

All-American Center

Packer fans will enjoy watching the work of Frank McNally, veteran center who last year earned his place on the first All-American pro team. For alternates McNally, who incidentally is no relation of Johnny Blood, the Packer backfield ace, will have Tim Moynihan of Notre Dame and Erickson, another experienced man.

Steinbach, Rogge, Creighton and Keisling, the last named one of the best in the business will handle the Cardinal guard assignments. Gordon and Douds, the former with Brooklyn last season and the latter with Portsmouth, are a fast paid of tackles who may be depended upon.

Gene Rose, Frosty Peters, Bucky Moore, Tony Holm and Eddie Rice are other backfield flashes who are certain to get a taste of National league ball against the Packers Sun day.

Along with this pair in the battle of five farms was another veteran, Jesse Guilford, the 1921 champion and Oulmet's Boston neighbor, and Ross (Sandy) Somerville, four times former Canadian champion.

As was the case at Beverly a year ago Oulmet, at 39 the senior member of the surviving quartet, was paired with the youngest, Goodman, Guilford, who is 37, also gave away several years ago to the 29-year-old shotmaker from London, Ontario. The average age for the semi-finalists is nearly 32. In 1921 Oulmet engaged the 19-year-old Virginia, Billy Howell.

Guilford's advance was almost as great a comeback as was Oulmet's triumph in 1921. The Boston siege gun hasn't been this far since he won the championship at St. Louis eleven years ago and hasn't even qualified since 1926.

Somerville's first play yesterday left him a slight favorite over Guilford and a victory for him would give the tournament its first international final since Jones beat Phil Perkins of England in 1923.

Guilford's and Somerville's march to the semi-finals was comparatively easy, but Oulmet and Goodman were forced to rally strongly near the end and wage their drive to the 36th hole.

U. W. Opens Drill With Scrimmage

John Schneller, Neenah, Worked at Center by Doc Spears

Madison (AP)—Coach Clarence Spears pried the lid off the 1932 football practice season at Wisconsin yesterday in a fashion that was distinctly new in these parts, sending the Badgers through a scrimmage.

The new mentor let the grid hopefuls take the kinks out during a morning session but in the afternoon, after the newspaper photographers had taken charge for a half hour, lined up the squad in teams and began actual work.

Coach Spears indicated that he has not deserted the shift he used at Minnesota and Oregon. In spring practice it was not touched but he began using it yesterday. Not a few of the men who were given attention the first day were sophomores and they will undoubtedly be in action in the opener against Marquette, Oct. 1.

The team that in many ways looked like the eleven which will meet Marquette was composed of John Schneller at center; Capt. Greg Kabat and Mario Pacetti, guards; Frank Molinaro and Ray Davis, tackles; Bert Densmore and Richard Haworth, ends; Bobby Schiller, quarter; Charles Goldberger, fullback; and Nello Pacetti and Mickey McGuire, halfbacks.

Davis, Densmore, and Mario Pacetti are all sophomores. Other first year men who worked in with the old regulars included Richard Hartman, gangling Janesville youth who showed the greatest improvement among freshmen in spring practice and who plays halfback, Jerry Femal, tackle; George Dehnert, end, and Marvin Peterson, halfback.

Chicago (AP)—Barney Ross, Chicago, knocked out Frankie Petrolle, Fargo, N. D. (2); Jack Sharkey, St. Paul, outpointed Sammy Levine, Chicago (8); Paul Dazzo, Chicago, knocked out Frankie Wallace, Cleveland (4); Pat Flowers, Little Rock, Ark., outpointed Nick Scialaba, Chicago (6).

Farmer's Home Near Kaukauna Razed by Fire

Loss at Henry Vanderzanden Place Is Estimated at $4,000

Kaukauna — Loss estimated at more than $4,000 was caused by a fire that destroyed the home of Henry Vanderzanden in the town of Vanderbroek Thursday noon. The Vanderzanden home is on a farm about three miles from the city.

Starting on the roof from a spark from the chimney, the blaze spread rapidly through the second story of the frame structure. Members of the family were in the kitchen and did not know of the fire until notified by neighbors. The Kaukauna fire department was called, but the flames were too far advanced to save the house.

When firemen arrived they concentrated their efforts on the adjacent buildings. There were four other buildings on the farm. A pump house that had been caught in the blaze was saved when firemen used 140 gallons of chemical. A granary containing 800 bushels of grain also was saved, as was the main barn and another small building used for storing grain. About 20 tons of straw stacked near the cattle barn also was saved.

While the small truck of the department was at the Vanderzanden fire, the large truck was called to the Kaukauna Gun clubhouse where a fire had started in the flooring, being ignited by a discarded cigarette. Damage amounted to approximately $25, according to Joseph J. Jansen, club president.

Damage in both instances is covered by insurance. Vanderzanden said all the furnishings in his house also were destroyed. This was partly covered by insurance. He will rebuild.

John Lawe, Kaukauna, 95 Years Old Tomorrow

Kaukauna—John Lawe, Kaukauna's oldest resident, will celebrate his ninety-fifth birthday at his home in Lawe park here Saturday. Lawe has been confined to his home for the past few months with illness but his condition at the present time is improved.

His illness this summer made it impossible for him to attend the baseball games which occupy his entire interest during the summer. He hopes to reach the century mark.

He was born Sept. 17, 1837, in Green Bay, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lawe. His father was the founder of Kaukauna and gave the city its present name. Coming to Kaukauna at the age of two years with his parents, he later began grade school at Little Chute, which was then under direction of the Rev. Vanderbroek. He then attended high school at his birthplace in Green Bay.

Finishing his high school career he enrolled at Lawrence Institute, which is now Lawrence college at Appleton. His father owned the land which the Institute acquired, now the present site of the college. He again attended the school when it became a university, and was graduated with the class of 1859. During his school days, Lawe had to traverse old Indian trails to reach the school.

Adventuresome Life
During the years following his school days Lawe traveled extensively, and his life became an interesting round of adventure. At various periods he was a printer, editor, soldier, hotel proprietor and theatre owner.

Serving under General Sherman and Grant during the Civil war, he became a member of Company F, 32nd Wisconsin Infantry. He served as aide-de-camp to General Grant. His duties consisted of carrying orders and instructions to the various captains of regiments and relaying the communications of officers to their superiors. He escaped through the war unscathed. After the war the veterans formed the Paul H. Beaulieu Post No. 247, Grand Army of the Republic, of which he is now the only surviving member.

The work of this organization was later turned over to the Kaukauna Post No. 41 American Legion.

JOHN LAWE

Lawe has wanted to discontinue the post in Kaukauna, but the remaining organizations in the state have urged him to carry on.

After traveling about and trying almost every trade, Lawe returned to Kaukauna in 1890 and opened the Hotel Kaukauna, then under the name of Hotel Brothers. The name of the hotel was changed to Hotel LaSalle in honor of the famed explorer, and the hotel is now known as Hotel Kaukauna. A new building was constructed later.

Lawe has collected a large assortment of souvenirs during his lifetime and has contributed a number of the more precious ones to the Neville museum at Green Bay. The deed for the property on which the Lawe estate is now located is in Lawe's possession and bears the signature of Andrew Jackson, the president of the United States.

The rate will be increased on parcels of lesser weight and will be decreased on parcels of heavy weights. A one to four cent increase will be imposed upon parcels of lesser weight while in the heavier class reductions will be made up to 67 cents.

A new 3-cent stamp has been issued and is known as the Xth Olympic Commemorative stamp. It has been used in honor of the International Olympic games held in Los Angeles, Calif., this year. Another stamp to commemorate the event also has been issued in the 5-cent denomination. The three cent stamp is printed in purple ink with the figure of a runner while the five cent stamp is in blue ink and bears the figure of a Roman discus thrower.

The postmaster also announced that flags to drape the caskets of deceased war veterans can be secured by applying at postoffices located in county seats. The flags will be given free of charge and will become the property of the nearest relative after the burial.
